WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(UP)—The senate today confirmed, 63 to 16, President Roosevelt's nomination of Senator Hugo L. The confirmation automatically elevated Black to the post vacated

EX-SENATOR HEFLIN SEEKS BLACK POST

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 17.—(UP)—Former Senator Thomas J. Hefflin, "Cotton Tom" to Alabamians, came out of a seven-year political exile tonight with the announcement he would be a candidate to succeed Senator Hugo L. Black, nominated to the United States supreme court.

Hefflin, forced into the political exile by Alabama "loyal" Democrats because of his opposition to Al Smith for president in 1928, revealed his return to the political ring after a conference with Governor Bibb Graves.

Black, a New Deal liberal, will give the administration a 6-to-3 majority on the high tribunal on the basis of existing liberal-conservative alignment, as it prepares for a new term.

Britain To Retaliate If 'Subs' Attack Ships

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The British admiralty today ordered the Empire's men of war to counter-attack any submarine attacking a British merchantman.

The admiralty issued the orders upon instructions from the cabinet, which expressed its perturbation at the increasing number of attacks upon shipping in the Mediterranean. The decision was said to be limited to Spanish troubles.

The order to retaliate was seen as Britain's bluntly spoken answer to the recent attack on the tanker British Corporal by three planes off Algiers.

An Italian and a French ship similarly were attacked.

Lindsey Hopkins, Capitalist, Dies of Heart Attack Here

Philanthropist Ill Only Two Weeks, Condition Not Considered Grave.

Lindsey Hopkins, one of Atlanta's principal financiers and philanthropists, died at the family home, West Face Ferry road, at 6:10 o'clock last night of a heart attack. He was 58 years of age.

Although he had been ill for the past two weeks, his condition was not considered critical until a few days ago when he returned from a trip to New York.

Quietly charitable, Mr. Hopkins made large benefactions to institutions in Atlanta and within the last year gave property and gifts aggregating $100,000. Of the sum $50,000 was contributed to Emory University, $15,000 to the Good Samaritan Clinic, and the rest was a gift of his former home on Peachtree street to the Peachtree Christian church.

It is said that the church at one time offered to buy the home for $40,000 for a parsonage, but Mr. Hopkins preferred in his own way to make of it a gift.

Married in 1906, Mr. Hopkins was born at Reidsburg, April 22, 1879, the son of Jonathan and Minerva Jones Hopkins. He received his education at the University of North Carolina. His first business connection was as a salesman traveling through southern states selling oil and paint.

In 1906 Mr. Hopkins married Lenora Balesley, a native of Greensboro, N. C. He later moved to Greensboro, where he was engaged in the automobile business. He sold Willys-Overland automobiles for a while and then became connected with the Cadillac company.

Moving to Atlanta about 1910, Mr. Hopkins was a pioneer in the introduction and distribution of

KILLER CONFESSES IN TRUNK MURDER CELL IN ALCATRAZ FACED BY BAKER

Slayer Quickly Arrested
After Leaving Body at Gotham Express Office.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Detective Captain Edward Mullins announced tonight a man booked as Joseph Ogden, 36-year-old unemployed cook and dishwasher, had confessed the slaying of Oliver George Sinecal, whose nude body was found in a trunk delivered to an express agency this afternoon.

Detectives said they traced the trunk to a dealer who said he sold it yesterday. The principal clue, detectives said, was a number on the trunk.

Traced Through Trunk.
With it they began a canvass of luggage concerns in the city. They then went to the west side address to which the trunk was delivered and arrested Ogden in his three-room second floor apartment.

Police said they found two pistols in Ogden's room, one of them a .32-caliber revolver from which one shell had been fired.

When discovered through blood trickling from the trunk, Sinecal's body had a .32-caliber slug in the head.

Police said this weapon killed Sinecal, who had a petty police record in several cities.

Tattoo Obliterated.
Sinecal, who was known to the police of Seattle, Los Angeles and Boston as well as of this city, had been shot once through the back of the head.

Given Flowers, F. D. R.'s Son Hurls Wine Into Face of French Mayor

CANNES, France, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Pierre Nouveau, mayor of Cannes, said tonight that John Roosevelt, 20-year-old son of President Roosevelt, hurled a glass of champagne in his face when he offered the youth a bouquet of flowers on behalf of the city.

The incident occurred Sunday night in front of the fashionable Carlton hotel during the annual "ballet of the flowers" festival of this Riviera resort, according to the mayor.

The youngest son of the President, who is touring Europe during his vacation from Harvard University and has had gay times in the company of several companions, was said by the mayor to have hurled the champagne glass while a group of distinguished visitors looked on.

He said that one of young Roosevelt's friends threw the bouquet of flowers into the gutter. Everyone at the "ballet of the flowers" was celebrating in the streets and Mayor Nouveau was unable to say whether young Roosevelt deliberately aimed the glass at his face.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A boisterous house passed the session's final appropriation bill in an overtime session tonight after increasing it by $20,000,000 to start the administration's farm tenancy program.

Carrying a total of $98,880,375, the appropriation went through without a record vote.

The house overrode recommendations of its appropriations committee and pleas for economy in granting the Agriculture Department's request for $20,000,000 to start tenancy aid.

Half of this fund was asked for farm purchase loans to tenants and half for converting portions of the western "dust bowl" into a vast pasture.

An amendment by Representative Starnes, Democrat, Alabama, providing the millions for tenancy aid, won despite vigorous, bipartisan opposition.

Farm state members demanded that something be done for "these homeless farmers."

The bill also carries $22,500,000 to begin a three-year program of postoffice and other public building construction. Members said the program will permit erection of approximately 380 structures costing $70,000,000.

As passed, the bill was approximately $20,387,500 larger than the total recommended by the appropriations committee.

Part of the increase was due to

Mrs. Whitworth is in the Georgia Baptist hospital at Atlanta dangerously wounded. The employer, W. H. Jennings, 42 years old, head of the Barrow Manufacturing Company, whom Mrs. Whitworth served as secretary, was not wounded dangerously.

One bullet struck him in the ear and grazed his shoulder. Another gave him a flesh wound in the back. A third bullet missed.

Friends insisted that the cause of the shooting was a quarrel over Mrs. Whitworth's determination to continue on her job despite the pleading of her husband that she quit.

Roosevelt Refuses To In-

By HENRY WILSON SHARPE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today ordered 1,200 marines dispatched to Shanghai to guard Americans whose lives are endangered by the Sino-Japanese crisis as high administrative officials revealed that the chief executive will delay application of the neutrality act in the far eastern crisis, at least for the time being.

It was revealed that the situation with regard to the neutrality law is on a day-to-day basis but that the President may decide at any time that developments warrant application of the act. Administration sources emphasized that present circumstances do not warrant such action since there has been no severance of diplomatic relations, or formal declaration of war by either China or Japan.

The White House position was made known after the President, responding to appeals from Admiral Harry E. Farnell, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, ordered the marine reinforcements to embark from San Diego for Shanghai as quickly as possible.

Hull Issues Order

The order was issued through Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who said that devil dogs—the sixth regiment and headquarters company of the second marine brigade—will reinforce the fourth marine regiment and blue jackets, now on a continuous "alarm" basis in Shanghai and environs.

Simultaneously, Hull said that the administration would seek a $500,000 appropriation for financial relief work among and evacuation of Americans from the war zones, especially Shanghai. He said the marines will sail aboard the transport Chaumont in about 10 days and should reach Shanghai in five weeks.

The Chaumont will be conveyed

Patrolman A. Douglas Poole, son of the late chief of detectives, was named in a two-count true bill of indictment yesterday by the Fulton grand jury on charges of cursing.

The indictment charges Poole with using profane language in the presence of Mrs. J. B. Woolen, of 355 Brooks avenue, N. E., and with cursing J. M. Byers, of Cumming, "tending to cause a breach of the peace."

Bond for Poole was set at $100 but he had not made it late yesterday afternoon.

Poole is now under a 29-day suspension as the result of conviction by the police committee of manhandling E. Cutler Dawes, nephew of former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who was arrested by Poole on a charge of interfering with an officer as he made a traffic case against Byers July 30 on Spring street, near Trinity avenue.

The indictment returned yesterday charges Poole shouted, "What is the matter, are you crazy, drunk or just a — fool?" to Byers.

Here Is Vast Zone of the Undeclared War

The zone of the Far Eastern undeclared war between Japan and China. To the north of Manchukuo is Soviet Russia, near enough to Tokyo and the big Japanese industrial cities for Red fliers to wreak havoc and paralyze the empire by bombing. And Russia is reported to have 4,000 to 6,000 planes and pilots. Japanese troops are pouring into China from two sources; by transports from Japanese ports and overland from Manchukuo, the sea trips ending at Shanghai and Tsingtao, the troop trains from Manchukuo to the battle line northeast of Peiping at Nankow Pass. American refugees from Shanghai are being taken by sea to Manila, the British going to Hong Kong. The Shanghai battle line now extends all the way up the Yangtze river to Nanking and Japanese war planes were reported to have raided Hangchow, south of Shanghai. On this map is shown a big block of Asia. Here, with Russia on the north and China on the south and west, the Japanese could be hard pressed to save their empire and big cities should the Soviet come in from the side of China and Nippon be pinched between the Russian bear and the Chinese dragon.

Emperor Ready To Call Diet To Map Drastic War Plans

Japanese Cabinet Seeking More Funds as Military Chiefs
Prepare To Destroy Chinese Central Forces; Five-Day Session To Give Army Full Power.

TOKYO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Japanese cabinet today proposed the summoning of parliament into an extraordinary session September 3 to erect a wartime economic structure and pass other measures vital to Japan's campaign in the undeclared war with China.

The session, the third meeting of the legislature within 10 months, a record, will last only five days. It will be called formally by Emperor Hirohito.

Confronted with the task of providing essential appropriations and taking kindred steps for the prosecution of the campaign, parliament was expected to establish a record also in the passage of more important measures in a shorter time than any of its 71 predecessors.

The opening day of the session, according to the program, will be given over to organization with an address from the throne the following day.

On September 5 there will be addresses by Prince Fumimaro Kono, the premier; Koki Hirota, foreign minister; Okinobu Kaya, finance minister; and possibly others.

This program will leave only three and a fraction days in which to pass war appropriations, place the country's economic structure on a wartime basis and enact other war measures.

Ministers will be required to submit bills for approval no later than August 26.

The home office decided to demand additional appropriations from the diet for the relief of families of the fighters at the front.

The municipality of Tokyo prepared to curtail next year's budget by about 60,000,000 yen ($17,400,-

SUTTON REMAINS DEAF TO APPEALS FOR 18 TEACHERS

School Superintendent Is Firm in Refusal To Re-hire Pensioners.

Definite refusal to recommend another year of employment for 18 teachers automatically retired last month was given the Board of Education yesterday by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, school superintendent.

Ernest Brewer and Dr. H. J. Penn joined in requesting the superintendent to reconsider his recommendations which forced the retirement of the veteran school employees, but Dr. Sutton declared flatly, "the matter is closed as far as I am concerned."

Charging that the 18 teachers were discriminated against because he claimed they were just as capable and efficient as many teachers over 65 years of age who were continued upon Dr. Sutton's recommendation, Brewer said "this is the most unfair thing that has happened in my five years as a member of the board."

"I have never shirked my duty and this responsibility of nominating teachers who are to remain after reaching 65 was placed on me by Brewer and other board members," Dr. Sutton asserted. "I think Dr. Sutton is due the 18 teachers an apology because his failure to recommend an extension in their employment inferred they were not as capable and efficient as other teachers who were continued," Penn pointed out.

"I did select the outstanding teachers to be continued," the school superintendent asserted. Penn and Brewer, beyond making the request of Dr. Sutton, did not push the subject of automatic retirement for school employees at 65 years of age. Brewer, chairman of the rules committee, said it will be considered in committee before being brought to the board again.

Criticism by Parents. Criticism of school teachers organizing private classes during summer vacations was revealed by Dr. Penn. He said many parents had objected to teachers drawing

'Atlanta Screen Debutantes' Film Goes to Hollywood

Clifford T. Burgess, executive manager and talent scout for Astral Productions, boarded a Delta Airlines Lockheed Electra plane yesterday for Dallas, where he connected with American Airlines, carrying to Hollywood that part of the film "Atlanta Screen Debutantes," which has been completed. The entire film will be sent to the movie capital for exhibition as soon as it has been edited and perfected.

12 months pay charging for private classes in the summer. "I think the school system should have a summer session," Dr. Sutton declared. He said there were 15 or 20 private classes besides special coaches.

Parent-teacher associations at the Milton Avenue and the Kingsbury schools sent resolutions to the board asking that Miss Belle Simpson and Miss Helen Roddy who were retired, be continued another year. The board took no action.

Requests Received. Requests from the Fourth Ward Civic League for an auditorium at the Sylvan Hills school and a new junior high school for the Sylvan Hills and Capitol View sections were referred to the buildings and grounds committee.

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, reported progress in the school building program, with a number of new buildings already completed and work soon to be finished on half a dozen more. She said $98,685 of school bond money had been expended leaving a balance of $185,195.

Board Approves Changes. The board approved the following resignations, retirements, leaves of absence and new elections:

before the shooting Whitworth came to him and demanded he discharge Mrs. Whitworth but the plant manager refused to do so, adding that he told Whitworth his wife could stay on the job if she wanted to or she could quit if she wanted to.

Quarrelled Over Work. Relatives and friends said the shooting climaxed a quarrel over Mrs. Whitworth's working which began shortly after they were first married 10 years ago. At that time Mrs. Whitworth went to work at the Barrow plant.

Although there was reputed to have been domestic strife about the job at the time of the divorce there is no record of it entering into the court action. Mrs. Whitworth accused her husband of infidelity and obtained her divorce on those grounds. They were remarried several months after the divorce was granted.

According to the Windsor police department they received reports

Copeland Carries 'Trade' to Senate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(P) Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, for many years a physician and public health official, administered first aid today to one of his colleagues on the senate floor.

When Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, broke into a fit of coughing during a speech, Copeland promptly produced a bottle of throat lozenges and laid one on Schwellenbach's desk.

The Washington senator continued his speech without another cough.

of a quarrel between the Whitworths at lunch time. He is said to have renewed an oft-repeated demand that she quit her job. She is said to have refused. Jennings said that Whitworth came to his office about 1 o'clock and demanded that he dismiss Mrs. Whitworth from his employ.

Settle It Themselves. "I told him that it was a matter that they must settle between themselves," Jennings said. "Mrs. Whitworth was a capable office worker and I informed her husband that if she wanted to retain her job we would be glad to have her. But I also told him that if he persuaded her to quit that we would not attempt to persuade her to stay. He left with the understanding that they would settle it themselves."

The Whitworths had met for lunch together. After the lunch Whitworth wrote a note to his sister, indicating that he intended to kill his wife and himself. He gave instructions as to the disposal of some property as well as some money which he had obtained only yesterday through the sale of half interest in his filling station.

About 1:30 o'clock Whitworth encountered his wife in front of the Hamilton Motor Company near the Barrow county courthouse.

Suddenly Puled Gun. Pedestrians reported that they conversed briefly and that Whitworth suddenly pulled out a pistol and shot Mrs. Whitworth through the chest. She slumped to the pavement. Whitworth was seen to circle around her. He fired a second shot as the woman lay on the street, witnesses said.

The filling station operator then scurried two blocks through an alley to the Barrow Manufacturing Company.

Jennings saw Whitworth enter the office, pistol in hand. The plant manager ducked behind his desk, he said, but Whitworth opened fire as he ducked. The first two shots struck Jennings but the third was imbedded in a wall behind his desk.

After firing the three shots in the plant Whitworth used the sixth bullet in his German luger on himself. It entered his brain and he died instantly.

J. R. VANSANT ENDS LIFE AT STATESBORO

STATESBORO, Ga., Aug. 17.—(P)—J. R. Vansant, manager of the Statesboro district office of the Georgia Power Company, died at a Statesboro hospital shortly after noon today of what Sheriff L. M. Mallard said was a self-inflicted shotgun wound.

Sheriff Mallard said Vansant told physicians he shot himself, and the officer said no inquest would be held.

Vansant had been in charge of the power company office here for the past several years. Sheriff Mallard attributed the act to despondency caused by illness.

restoration of $887,500 which the committee had cut from an appropriation for the National Labor Relations Board.

The fund for the labor board was the subject of bitter controversy.

"If you want to give life to the Wagner-Connelly labor relations act," urged Representative Mead, Democrat, New York, "rise in your places and support this amendment."

Representative Rankin, Democrat, Massachusetts, accused the labor board of "fomenting strikes" and increasing labor unrest.

"This money is being wasted," he declared. "I am in favor of a labor board but I am in favor of an honest board."

He demanded to know whether the members of the three-man board are members of the CIO.

"If they are," he shouted, "they ought to be fired."

The committee slash in the board's fund was overridden finally by a vote of 125 to 112.

During the house debate appropriations committee members argued that the tenancy program is "nebulous and indefinite." Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, asserting that serious difficulties are ahead unless Congress balances the budget as speedily as possible, declared the plan is "the craziest thing I ever heard of."

Accused by Representative McFarlane, Democrat, Texas, of linking up with Republicans in most questions, Woodrum retorted quickly:

"Oh, I don't know about that. The good book says 'join not the multitude to do evil.'"

The Virginian warned his colleagues that eventually 2,800,000 farmers will be "running their farms on government subsidies."

"Then you'll have an opportunity to explain to the other 90 per cent of your farmers where the justice and equity come in," he said.

Chairman Jones, Democrat, Texas, of the agriculture committee, defended the tenancy program answering contentions that the proposed initial outlay is too small to dent the problem. Jones asserted he would rather have the program start modestly "than with a big flush."

Red Tape Cut. The house cut much of the red tape out of its complicated parliamentary rules to speed up business so that it may adjourn Saturday. Right-of-way to the floor tomorrow was obtained for low-cost housing legislation, the only additional measure on the program which leaders expect to enact before adjournment.

Some members still fought today for action on wage and hour legislation. Representative Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, called a caucus of house Democrats, in response to a petition signed by 8 of them, to consider what, if anything can be done to wrest the labor standards bill from opponents hoarding it in the house rules committee. The caucus was set for Thursday. Most leaders agreed, however, the wage-hour measure was destined to join court reorganization, crop control and regional planning on the list of administration proposals failing of enactment.

President Roosevelt still refused to concede defeat on the wage-hour issue. At his press conference he said a reporter who questioned him on that point was a little premature.

Special Session in Air. Asked if he intends to call a special session of congress this fall, the President said that still was an "if" question.

PRISONERS POUR INTO REBEL LINES

Dogged Advance Is Halted To Bring Up Cannons and Supplies.

WITH INSURGENTS ON THE SANTANDER FRONT, Aug. 17.—(P)—The swift advance of insurgent troops toward Santander, Eusebio capital and lone Spanish government port on this coast, temporarily halted today.

Three days of dogged advance from the south was ended to give sun-scorched insurgent troops a rest, to move forward the heavy cannon that have pounded into submission 60 villages and hamlets and to await the arrival of supplies for five long columns of fighting men.

The column which captured the important mineral and manufacturing town of Reinoso yesterday, and left the prize to mop up brigades, today fought off heavy counter-attacks on the march north.

It was the strongest challenge the government has issued in the current drive and it impelled insurgents to defend vigorously the arms, provisions and factories they won yesterday.

Government resistance was felt behind insurgent lines where several small towns were bombed from the air in a desperate effort to stave off insurgent capture of Santander.

Prisoners continued to pour into insurgent positions as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's columns were within 30 miles of their seaport objective. Captives to date were estimated to total 2,000.

Lewis Jones, calendar clerk of the superior court, said the case will be transferred immediately to Solicitor John S. McClelland for prosecution.

G. O. P. CHOOSES BARTON TO SEEK HOUSE SEAT

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(P)—Bruce Barton, author and advertising man, was chosen today by the Republican organization as a candidate for the house of representatives from the 17th (Silk-Stocking) congressional district of Manhattan.

The district long has been called the "Silk-Stocking" district because in it live many of the city's wealthiest and socially renowned persons. The death of Theodore Payser, Democrat, left the seat vacant.

ocrats in the house rules committee was expressed on the house floor by white-haired Representative Martin, Democrat, Colorado.

He declared the legislation was smothered because rules committee members knew it would be passed by an overwhelming majority if the house were given an opportunity to vote on it.

"The Republican members of the rules committee will not be held responsible for what happens to the wages and hours bill," he warned his Democratic colleagues. "The Democratic party will be held responsible."

The house cut in half a request from the Maritime Commission for authority to enter into $150,000,000 of ship-building contracts in addition to those for which it already has funds on hand.

Without a dissenting vote, the chamber adopted a proposal by Representative Ludlow, Republican, Indiana, to limit contract authorizations to $75,000,000.

The senate finance committee adopted a favorable report on the administration's tax loophole legislation after a three-hour night session with Treasury experts.

Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said he planned to bring up the bill for consideration on the senate floor tomorrow or Thursday. It has been approved by the house.

SENATE CONFIRMS BLACK FOR COURT

reached a crescendo in Burke's charge, tossed dramatically after the veteran Senator William E. Borah, Republican, Idaho, had denied the Klan accusations and challenged anyone with proof of them "to present them here."

But despite Burke's charges and the plea of Senator Millard Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, that "we'll never have a chance to find out the truth after confirmation," the senate went ahead.

Those who voted with Bridges to recommit were Austin, Republican, Vermont; Burke, Democrat, Nebraska; Byrd, Democrat, Virginia; Copeland, Democrat, New York; Davis, Republican, Pennsylvania; Gerry, Democrat, Rhode Island; Hale, Republican, Maine; Johnson, Republican, California; Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts; Loneragan, Democrat, Connecticut; Steiwer, Republican, Oregon; Townsend, Republican, Delaware; Tydings, and White, Republican, Maine.

Opposition Vote. The lineup on confirmation itself was slightly different. Six Democrats joined with 10 Republicans to vote against Black. Those opposing Black:

Democrats: Burke, Byrd, Copeland, Gerry, Glass, King.

Republicans: Austin, Borah, Bridges, Davis, Hale, Johnson of California, Lodge Steiwer, Townsend, White.

Black, who had absented himself from the senate ever since the day his nomination went up, awaited word of the senate's action in the office of the secretary across the hall. Smiling, but somewhat nervous, he received the congratulations of fellow senators and posed with Mrs. Black for photographers.

Black is "Gratified." "I'm very much gratified at the confirmation," he said. "As I said several days ago, I realize it is a position of great honor and responsibility."

Some of the senators who joined in what they knew was a hopeless fight, said that confirmation had not ended the dispute over Black's eligibility. They predicted that the legal question would be raised soon before the supreme court itself, possibly when some litigant asks a ruling on the right of the Alabamian to occupy the bench.

KLAN HEAD DENIES BLACK IS MEMBER

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, expressed indifference here yesterday to a statement of Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, that Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, supreme court nominee, was "a Klan sympathizer."

"I'm hoeing my own row," Dr. Evans said. "I don't care a darn about either one of them."

"Copeland is running for mayor of New York. He has to have an issue. I don't intend to become the issue."

The imperial wizard said Black "is not a member of the Klan."

GRAVES' WIFE FAVORED AS BLACK SUCCESSOR

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 17.—(P)—Governor Bibb Graves predicted tonight a successor to Hugo L. Black, Democrat, Alabama, confirmed to the supreme court today, might be named tomorrow or Thursday.

High political circle predictions centered on Dixie Graves, the Governor's wife, and Donald Comer, textile manufacturer, for "temporary" appointment. Majority opinion leaned toward the woman.

COUNTIES FACING BIG REVENUE LOSS

Commissioners To Meet Friday Seeking Solution to Problem.

Faced with possible loss of 25 per cent of county revenue under homestead and personal property tax exemptions, the County Commissioners' Association of Georgia will meet Friday to seek a solution to the problem.

Fulton county will lose 9 per cent under the ad valorem exemptions, it was said, and DeKalb will lose 36 per cent. Other counties, however, will lose as high as 50 per cent of their revenue—with the combined loss by all counties amounting to $2,225,000.

The legislative committee of the association will meet at 10 o'clock and the board of managers will meet at 1 o'clock Friday at the Henry Grady hotel.

DeKalb's commissioner of roads and revenue, C. A. Matthews, is chairman of the board of managers. Julius A. McCurdy, chairman of the legislative committee, is DeKalb county attorney.

Boys Fire on Villain, Theater Seizes Guns

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 17.—(P)—"Park your shootin' irons at the door" is the rule at an Indianapolis neighborhood theater all because the small boy patrons were too anxious to help the hero.

Every Saturday afternoon the youngsters turn out for a western thriller. For a time they were content to boot the villain but recently they started bringing their toy pistols and cap guns responded throughout the theater as they fired at the villain.

The little girl patrons protested. The theater manager now "frisks" the "cowboys" as they arrive. On one he found a gun under each arm and another tied around his neck.

Two Letters...

"My daughter," she wrote, "is graduating from high school this June. I have never been able to give her the advantages most girls enjoy, but I want her graduation to be a perfect, unmarred occasion. I can spend 19.95 on her dress and would like it to be the most beautiful 19.95 dress in the world."

Our ready-to-wear staff took up the challenge, searched through our stock of graduation dresses. Out of the scores of lovely styles we found one that seemed made-to-order for this "perfect, unmarred occasion." Off it went in a cloud of tissue paper and good wishes. By return mail we had a letter from the graduate herself. She said it was the most beautiful dress she had ever owned.

We like letters like that. Folks who write letters like that must be friends. Friends are worth keeping.

JAPANESE SEIZE BRITISH PROPERTY AS HOME TROOPS LAND

NIPPONESE GAINING IN VICIOUS BATTLE OVER 45-MILE FRONT

Pincer Movement on Both Sides of Whangpoo Is Clamped on City.

Other communication systems were jammed to the limit. Cable communication with the United States also was cut off. Whether the cable was cut deliberately or during the bombardment was unknown, but it tended to bear out reports that the supreme Japanese effort to crush the Chinese in Shanghai had begun.

The U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the American Asiatic fleet, moved up the Whangpoo to protect refugees boarding a tender for the liner President McKinley. It was reported the Central Chinese government was preparing to flee Nanking and move the national capital far inland to Shanghai, capital of Hunan province.

For the first time since this new Shanghai war started the night of August 8, when two Japanese navy men were killed by Chinese soldiers outside the Hungjiao air-drome, the Japanese appeared definitely to be gaining the upper hand.

No reason for the seizure of British buildings was given immediately but it was believed the Japanese needed them to house officers of their troops—now estimated at more than 45,000.

The bulk of the Japanese army regiments were brought ashore in flatboats from their transports at Luohu, on the Yangtze, near the mouth of the Whangpoo.

The Japanese offensive was in the form of a pincer movement. They were throwing a wall of artillery and bayonets around the city on both banks of the Whangpoo.

The Japanese attacked on all fronts, except in Shantung province where they still have hundreds of civilians to remove.

They drove anew at fortified Chinese positions at the Nankow pass, on the Peiping-Suiyuan railway northwest of Peiping and they fought southward on the Peiping-Hankow railway south of Peiping and the Tientsin-Pukow-Nanking railway south of Tientsin.

Spread of hostilities to south China was feared and thousands of additional Chinese civilians left the ports of Soochow, Amoy, Swatow and Ningpo.

150,000 in Battle. More than 150,000 men—some estimates were as high as 200,000—were engaged along a front of some 45 miles in the battle of Shanghai today.

More than 600 Americans, chiefly women and children, had been removed from the city and were en route to Manila on two American passenger liners requisitioned for the purpose. Hundreds of British nationals also had been removed, chiefly to Hong Kong.

Disease was increasing in this partly wrecked city and the safety of some 3,400 Americans and thousands of Occidentals was becoming more dangerous hourly.

Three additional United States warships—the gunboat Isabel with 60 men from Tientsin and the destroyers Edsall and Parrott from Chefoo, with 100 men each—were due in the harbor this morning to aid in defending the American community and its property.

Shrapnel Sprays American Quarter. By MORRIS J. HARRIS. SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—(P)—(Wednesday)—Ever-growing Chinese armies hurled themselves in ragged but savage array against the tight Japanese lines about Shanghai today with the avowed purpose of pushing the invader back into the sea from which he came.

The battle for Shanghai roared into its sixth day with no lessening of the ferocity of the conflict along the meandering Whangpoo river or the peril of the 3,500,000 non-combatants huddled in the city.

Shells and shell fragments in increased numbers sprayed the French concession, in which most of the American community lives. Police said shrapnel or splinters caused at least 50 new casualties, all Chinese, within the concession. Many of them died.

War Theater Where Guns Bring Death and Desolation

Modern war in all its horrible and devastating effects is being fought in the theater shown in this map. Two main battles are being waged to a finish with thousands of casualties, the armies of China and Japan being locked in conflict with battleships, heavy artillery, anti-aircraft guns, infantry, marines, blue-jackets, war planes of bomber and pursuit type, trench mortars and every other form of ultra-modern ordnance. Fully 100,000 troops face each other at pointblank range within the city of Shanghai with its 20-and-more-story skyscrapers and its 3,500,000 inhabitants. The big land battle is on the Chapei-Japanese concession front in the center above. The naval-land-artillery battle is on the Whangpoo river-Pootung front in the lower center. The Japanese concession and Chapei areas are ablaze. Shells and bombs are falling in the French and British sections. American and other refugees are being taken down the Whangpoo in the midst of the crossfires. All is war at its worst.

Major Developments in War Are Told in Brief Paragraphs

WASHINGTON: U. S. orders 1,200 additional marines to Shanghai to reinforce 1,050 there plus additional detachments en route from Manila; administration asks $500,000 to evacuate Americans.

SHANGHAI: Japanese land two army divisions, seize British-owned property in International Settlement, start great drive to clear more than 100,000 Chinese soldiers from Shanghai area; 350 additional American women and children leave for Manila bringing total evacuations to more than 600; epidemic threatens city; Chinese national government may flee Nanking to distant Changsha; in Hunan province; a long war foreseen.

TIENSIN: Japanese attacking on Peiping-Suiyuan, Peiping-Hankow and Tientsin-Nanking sectors; tension in Tientsin, Shantung province increases, periling 1,000 Americans there and hundreds of other foreigners—especially Japanese.

NANKING: Communique claims more than 30 Japanese planes shot down; Chinese assert they are winning everywhere.

TOKYO: Government says war progressing satisfactorily; parliament reconvenes September 3 for five-day session to appropriate more money for China war.

PRAGUE: Chinese Finance Minister H. H. Kung, continuing his series of credit arrangements with European powers, arranges $500,000,000 credit with Czechoslovak Skoda munitions works.

LONDON: Parliament may be called for emergency sessions if international situation gets worse; cabinet discusses Shanghai; Far Eastern securities drop on stock exchange; Sweden and Denmark evacuating their nationals from Shanghai along with Britain.

through the streets of Shanghai today, searching, beating and killing natives they suspected of plotting to poison the city's water supply, while thousands of homeless refugees clamored for food at the barricaded gates of the International Settlement.

Native newspapers had carried rumors, unconfirmed, that Japanese tried to influence natives to poison the city's water supply. Infuriated, menacing mobs acted upon the rumors and many natives were killed or beaten. Scores of Chinese were stopped and searched by the raiding gangs. If they possessed powders or medicines of any kind, the victims were beaten. Fifteen innocent Chinese, police said, were killed and at least 40 injured from this cause.

The problem of caring for the hundreds of thousands of homeless refugees became pressing. Sleep on Sidewalks. These stolid, hungry people, victims of an undeclared war that appears primarily as a test of strength for two armies of traditional enmity, have been living in vacant lots, in alleys, or even sleeping on sidewalks since the conflict drove them from their homes six days ago.

Authorities of the French concession and the International Settlement began rounding them up today. They will be isolated south of the concession, given food and a measure of protection.

Ten thousand tons of rice are on the way from Hong Kong, one item in the food program. But hunger drove some of them today to attack—they tried to seize two truck loads of rice. Armored cars drove them back.

Great fires which blazed the heavens at nightfall Tuesday had died to ashes this morning in Japanese sections—smoldering ruins could be seen in the once thriving, vast industrial district.

The city of 3,500,000 fearful people had spent a nervous night in eerie darkness, still now and then by fingers of light from the 20-odd Japanese warcraft along the Whangpoo, tirelessly seeking with floodlights to search out Chinese attempts to blow them up.

Police Reach Haven. Several scores of international Settlement police, caught in Tuesday's fighting in northeast Shanghai, reached safety. Dodging shell-fire, they ran a half-mile to the waterfront and commandeered a tugboat.

The police force included 39 Britishers, 250 Chinese, 60 Japanese and 18 Sikhs. Miraculously, they maneuvered their tug safely through withering Sino-Japanese gunfire.

Two British destroyers moved into position on the Whangpoo around midnight Tuesday, their white ensigns fluttering under their own searchlights that all might be informed of their neutrality.

The Japanese Idzumo, which the Chinese repeatedly have sought to destroy, moved down river two miles and was replaced by the newer cruiser Atama as guard close by the Japanese consulate.

The Shanghai-Hong Kong Bank brought $500,000,000 dollars (about $150,000,000 U. S.) from Hong Kong owing to the abnormal demand for cash—the notes previously had been withdrawn from circulation.

Nuns Sick It Out. Despite evacuation of the settlement north of Soochow creek, one foreign hospital continued to operate there behind Japanese lines. It was the Sacred Heart, under the French Sisters of Mercy, who refused to leave, saying they would remain "even though the institution be blown to bits." Three Chinese doctors are assisting them in caring for 300 wounded Chinese non-combatants, with the number increasing.

The latest estimate of dead and wounded, including Tuesday's toll from anti-aircraft shell splinters, was fixed at 1,400 dead and 1,600 wounded since Saturday. This includes the two major Chinese bombings of foreign areas.

Air Fleets Circle City. As long as daylight lasted Tuesday, Chinese and Japanese air fleets circled above the city, striking viciously at enemy positions and doing tremendous damage. How many lives they claimed could not even be estimated.

The flight of Americans and other foreigners from the Imperial city went on Tuesday, aided by shipping facilities would permit. Down the shell-churned Whangpoo, Shanghai's only avenue of escape, more than 2,000 American and British women and children were taken safely Tuesday to the liners President Jefferson and Rajputana, which carried them toward the havens of Manila and Hong Kong.

Two hundred ninety-four American women and children fled the city today, embarking by tender at 11:12 a. m. for the 10-mile trip to Woosung, where waited the liner President McKinley.

Protection of the foreign areas was increased by the arrival of the second battalion of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, rushed up from Hong Kong. The British troops landed at the Bund and marched to the racecourse in the heart of the International Settlement.

Marines Speeding From Manila. American marine reinforcements were speeding here from Manila. The destroyers Edsall and Parrott were on the way from Chefoo. Another British battalion and half a Punjab battalion were under orders for Shanghai.

At least 100,000 men were locked in the battle which twisted along the Whangpoo to the south of Shanghai. Yesterday the Chinese armies, including at least four of Nanking's best divisions, were estimated at 70,000. Their numbers were steadily growing as more regular and irregular units arrived to increase the pressure from all sides on the Japanese positions, facing both ways from the Whangpoo.

This pressure was strongest along the Hongkew-Chapei sector, just north of the city, where the Chinese drove toward Japanese headquarters in Yangtzeport, the eastern edge of the Japanese land positions, and in Pootung, across the river.

Chinese asserted their men held the initiative and even penetrated Japanese defense lines at some points, Japanese denied this claim but admitted "heavy odds" from the enemy.

The rival air armadas held the center of the stage yesterday, although there were only temporary lulls in the battles on land and the Japanese warships blasting at shore positions.

Chinese Bombs Start Fire. After a morning of intermittent rain, skies cleared over the battle zone and several Chinese planes appeared over Japanese-occupied areas in Hongkew and Chapei, which they bombed heavily. Several fires were started. Three of the largest raged on into the night, one in Chapei and the other two in a Japanese cotton mill district to the northeast, where heavy Japanese investments are concentrated.

Savage reprisals by the Japanese bombers followed quickly. They concentrated on Chapei, Kiangwan and Pootung, holding the largest Chinese concentrations. Thirteen big bombing planes came out of the northwestern sky, circled slowly and then they bombed with devastating effect on the vital railway establishments around the north station and the junction of the Shanghai-Nanking and Shanghai-Hangchow railways.

Twenty-five direct hits were scored, said a reliable eyewitness. The railway line, warehouses, water towers, other big buildings were wrecked. Chinese big caliber batteries were silenced.

Wind Fans Flames. Fires broke out all over the stricken district, which covered several square miles. A strong wind fanned the flames. Seven more Japanese planes joined the 13 for a final half-hour's bombing.

Foreigners who watched the earlier Chinese raid from a skyscraper near Soochow creek saw two planes drop two bombs near the Japanese headquarters, but they were then brought down in flames in Hongkew park.

The Japanese reported their anti-aircraft guns had shot down two enemy planes. Both pilots parachuted down. One was killed as he tried to flee, the other captured.

Despite the danger from anti-aircraft splinters, hundreds of thousands watched the air battles from the top of Shanghai buildings.

Each appearance of Chinese fliers called forth frenzied bursts from Japanese guns on the warships or ashore. Falling missiles raked a wide area.

Four shells struck the International Settlement jail on Ward road, killing an unknown number of prisoners. The jail usually holds several thousand. Part of a wall was blown out.

Two cell blocks were badly damaged. The Chinese wardens, however, carried on unflinchingly. Prisoners were kept locked in their cells.

French authorities protested to both Chinese and Japanese officials against artillery firing over the French concessions. In mid-afternoon heavy explosions rocked the "French town."

French Protect Waterworks. Four hundred French marines were thrown around the waterworks half a mile south of the city to insure water supply for the foreign communities. The French also placed guards around their convent and weather stations at Siccawei, to the west, these dispositions lengthening their front by some five miles and throwing the listed detachments, mostly Annamites and other colonial troops, far out into territory where Chinese forces are concentrating.

Reports from Nanking said Chinese and Japanese planes fought a fierce battle over Hangchow yesterday as the Chinese fought off a raid on their chief air base there, but losses were not reported.

Gasoline Supply Plentiful. The governing council of the Settlement announced there was no reason to fear a gasoline famine and urged residents not to attempt to secure unnecessary reserves.

The council issued a proclamation announcing it was taking stringent measures to maintain peace and protect life and property in the area under its control. Curfew will be enforced rigidly between 10 p. m. and 5 a. m. All persons loitering in the streets, organizing demonstrations or causing alarm or breach of the peace in any manner will be arrested and punished. Only the police and defense forces will be permitted to carry arms.

Chinese authorities at Canton advised their own women and children to leave the city, evidently fearing a Japanese air attack. A flood of Japanese refugees from Tsinan and other cities in the interior of Shantung province were pouring homeward through Tsiniao.

China Obtains Credit For $50,000,000 Arms. VIENNA, Aug. 17.—(P)—Dr. H. H. Kung, China's finance minister, wound up a "satisfactory" European business junket today with a shopping tour for warplanes, shells and gas masks.

Dr. Kung arranged at least three European loans for his country and obtained a $50,000,000 commercial credit with the Skoda (Czechoslovakian) armament concern.

He visited munitions factories of Hirtenberg and Wiener-Neustadt, preparatory to placing "big" orders.

After his "shopping" was finished, Dr. Kung talked excitedly of his European tour. Banging a table, he declared the trip has shown him "how great is the sympathy everywhere for China."

Dr. Kung said credits he obtained in Europe will be used for railroads.

His secretary, however, explained further that European funds would be used to buy airplanes and other supplies "which can be classed as war materials."

The huge Chinese army, Dr. Kung said, is better prepared than many imagine.

"The reason the Japanese are striking now," he explained, "is that they realize our army was steadily and quickly improving."

"As far as I'm concerned," the Japanese started the war because China refused to be a stepping-off place for a Japanese war against Russia. China could have bought a temporary peace."

Kung Is Confident China Will Win. (Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.) VIENNA, Aug. 17.—(By Wire)—Details of his purchases of munitions for China's embattled forces were disclosed here by H. H. Kung, Chinese finance minister, in an exclusive interview.

Mr. Kung, whose hotel quarters were the center of a buzzing throng of secretaries dealing with hopeful armament brokers trying to unload goods on the minister, expressed confidence that China eventually would emerge victorious in formal hostilities with Japan break out.

"The statement which I am making to you," said Mr. Kung, "is the last which I propose to make before returning to China. I have concluded a contract with the great Skoda works for delivery of 200,000. Concerning the conditions of payment to Skoda, I have decided to keep the details secret."

Not In Russia. "I have also entered negotiations with other Czechoslovakian firms, and these negotiations are still proceeding. For the moment, we have no intention of buying munitions in Russia, but we have made small purchases of war materials in Austria."

Mr. Kung continued with grave emphasis: "I honestly believe the Chinese reserves are amply sufficient to win a war against Japan if formal hostilities break out. The war, if it really breaks out, will be a long one, and will be a grueling test of our people, but I am thoroughly convinced that a awakened national spirit in the Chinese people will surmount all difficulties."

Remember Napoleon. "You must never forget our tremendous war-power. Our race represents one-quarter of all humanity. Our national resources are unlimited."

"It may be possible that, at the beginning of a war, the Japanese will be successful in a way, but the further they penetrate into China, the greater will be their difficulties. Never forget the lesson of Napoleon in Russia: always remember the retreat from Moscow."

Manila Prepares For Refugees. MANILA, Aug. 17.—(P)—Americans and Filipinos alike made room in their homes, hotels and apartments tonight for American refugees from war-torn Shanghai.

Expecting an influx of about 3,700 refugees, some of them destitute, beginning Thursday or Friday, the Philippine capital took quick measures designed to prevent confusion and profiteering.

Preparations were rushed to take care of the first contingent, on the Dollar Liner President Jefferson. That vessel took the initial few hundred refugees from the International City amid shell-fire and sailed for Manila, a distance of more than 1,000 miles.

Ship Due Friday. It is expected here Thursday night or Friday morning.

High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt's general co-ordinating committee reported the response to the appeal for immediate housing facilities was sufficient to care for the first arrivals. Those without funds will be transported by rail-road to the summer capital, Baguio, a mountain resort a few miles north of Manila. There they Acc Journalist Says China Is United, Has 400,000 Men in Army.

Editor's Note: When the Chinese-Japanese war started outside Peiping the night of July 7, the United Press ordered Jack Belden, of its Peiping office, to the front with instructions to keep going and cover major battles as they developed. Belden made an amazing journey of nearly 1,000 miles, covering fighting on the Peiping-Tientsin front; along the Peiping-Suiyuan railway; in Chahar and Suiyuan provinces; then in central China and finally in Nanking and the lower Yangtze valley.

By JACK BELDEN. (Copyright, 1937, by United Press.) SHANGHAI, Wednesday, Aug. 18.—I reached Shanghai today after a cross-country journey of nearly 1,000 miles through the far-flung zones of this Chinese-Japanese war.

What I saw convinced me that it will be a long and bitter struggle.

During the seven weeks I have been in the field I have seen fighting on eight different sectors in seven provinces.

My general conclusions after the journey:

1. That China for the first time in its modern history really is united and will obey Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's order to resist Japan as a single man.

2. That China now has more than 400,000 men in the field. Of these about 150,000 are well-trained and well equipped. The rest are veteran guerrilla fighters and, given enough ammunition, will be able to harass the Japanese army for years.

3. China's powerful provincial leaders north of the Yangtze river, including Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, pacification commissioner for Shanxi and Suiyuan provinces; General Fu Tso-yi in Chahar; General Han Fu-chu in Shantung; and the commanders of the former Manchurian armies of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, despite ancient enmities, now are supporting Generalissimo Chiang and the central government.

4. I believe that the Japanese higher leaders in North China consider the Shanghai fighting a catastrophe and that the army would like to have avoided it. Army leaders are inclined to blame the "carelessness" of the Japanese navy for the conflagration here. The Japanese army knows that it has its hands full in the north.

by the light cruiser Marblehead, which will augment the 34 battleships and destroyers now in Chinese waters.

Hornbecker Promoted.
President Roosevelt acted in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army, navy and marine corps after receipt of Yarnell's request for reinforcements and following emergency conferences with Hull, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, General Malin Craig, chief of staff of the army; Rear Admiral James O. Richardson, acting head of naval operations, and Stanley K. Hornbecker, veteran State Department expert, who today was advanced to the rank of adviser on Far Eastern affairs.

Both Hull and the President have sternly rebuffed congressmen and others who have demanded withdrawal of army, navy and marine forces from China, and application of the neutrality act. The demand was renewed today by three senate advocates of strict neutrality—Senators Gerald P. Nye, Republican, North Dakota; Homer T. Bone, Democrat, Washington, and Bennett C. Clark, Democrat, Missouri.

Joint Appeal.
They issued a joint statement urging invoking of the act and

Recruiting American Fliers to Go to Defense of China

Here is General Russell Hearn, soldier of fortune who has been decorated by 11 foreign governments, shown conferring with a group of expert aviators on planes for aiding China in the undeclared war with Japan. Already 182 American airmen have been enlisted and a battalion is soon to sail for the Orient. Hearn claims to have applications from 11,000 aviators and military trained men who want to go to China to fight under the Chinese forces.

declaring that "those who see no danger to the United States in involvement in the far eastern conflict if the neutrality law were not applied, can base their position only on the hazard that Japan will not blockade China."

"The protection of American life in China cannot be adversely influenced by the neutrality law," the statement said. "No nation would be any less cautious about giving the United States necessary grounds to wage war against her. It has been suggested that the invoking of the neutrality law would disturb the peace machine-ery in the far east or elsewhere which can be disturbed.

"Machinery which would function effectively for economic adjustment has not been created."

Clark Opposes Move.

Dispatch of the marines to China was opposed by Senator Clark. He said he would be favorable to any proposal to aid in evacuating American nationals but that he was "totally opposed" to sending marines to the center of hostilities.

Senator Key Pittman, Democrat, Nebraska, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said he felt that the purpose of sending the marines is to provide "escort" in removing Americans from the scene.

"The primary duty of the President now is to evacuate our nationals as fast as he can," he said. "It has to provide all possible means for a safe and fast escape and the detachment of marines will facilitate such an evacuation."

Hull Outlines Position.

Secretary Hull climaxed the day with a press conference at which he outlined the administration position in the crisis.

He said this government repeatedly has urged China and Japan not to conduct military operations or establish military bases in the Shanghai area. He said that both this and other governments had expressed the opinion to both nations that both alike would be considered responsible by the nations of the world for any harmful or destructive or serious military activities in the Shanghai zone.

He said that the administration was hopeful that by the time the marines arrive they will not be needed. He said that the United States policy in the present crisis was nothing new—that similar procedure was invoked after the Boxer rebellion and again in 1912 and 1927.

Policy of Peace.

Hull said that whenever American nationals in any part of the world are being denied equal protection of law, or are being unfairly treated, this government comes to their assistance by making earnest representations under international law as it is universally recognized and in support of the reasonable and rightful claims of the nationals.

He said that this policy applies to every square foot of the entire world. He emphasized that the State Department undertakes to carry forward this policy peacefully and in a manner mutually acceptable and advantageous. The question of force is entirely out of mind, he added, pointing to the manner in which Americans were evacuated from war-torn Spain.

LINDSEY HOPKINS TAKEN BY DEATH

automobiles, being a distributor for nine southern states. During that time he took a consistent interest in the development of good roads throughout the south and held many records as an automobile driver.

Owning First Plane Here.

An ardent aviation enthusiast, Mr. Hopkins is said to have owned the first private plane in Atlanta. He took an early interest in air service development, staging the first meet here even before the present Candler field became the city's airport. Also he was the first to mail an air mail letter in Atlanta, in 1911. The second trip of the Zeppelin Hindenburg carried him as a passenger from Germany to the United States.

He was a voting trustee in the Sperry Corporation which deals in airplane and navigation control devices. He was also a lifelong director of North American Aviation. Aside from his automobile and airplane interest, Mr. Hopkins was a director in the Coca-Cola Company, and "I was largely through his investments in this company that he amassed his fortune. He was a shrewd businessman, having developed an early interest in stocks and bonds.

He also was director in the Reynolds Metal Company and was intensely interested in real estate. He was one of the guiding lights in the reorganization of the Carl G. Fisher Corporation, which developed Miami Beach.

Firm of His Own.

In Miami he headed a separate real estate firm of his own, the Lindsey Hopkins Properties, and was owner of the Shoreland Arcade, the largest arcade in the south. He was also owner of the San Sebastian hotel, in Coral Gables, Fla., and the Roosevelt hotel in Miami.

Mr. Hopkins was perhaps the largest stockholder in the Fisher hotel chain, which owns the Flamingo, in Miami Beach, the King Cole, Boulevard and the Nautilus. In Atlanta he had extensive holdings in centrally located real estate. He owned a beautiful summer home at Lake Rabun, in addition to his home in Atlanta, and one in Miami.

At one time he was a dominant figure in American Hides & Leather. At the time of his death he was a director in the company. He was a member of the Surf Club at Miami Beach, the Bankers' Club of New York, and the Piedmont Driving Club in Atlanta. Extremely Liberal.

Mr. Hopkins was extremely liberal in giving to charities, but he never wanted any publicity or show. He had a particular interest in the medical department at Emory University and was constantly striving to improve its facilities.

At the time he made his gift to Emory, he wrote a brief, simple note explaining his reasons for making the contribution. The note said: "It has long been apparent that Atlanta has before it the possibility of developing a great medical ules were interrupted because American, British and Japanese vessels were shunted from their regular routes to evacuate menaced foreign communities at Shanghai and other Chinese cities.

The acting British consul general at Yokohama advised British residents of Shanghai spending summer holidays in Japan not to return to Shanghai "so long as the present conditions continue."

Chinese Forces Moving.
Japanese press dispatches from north China told of widespread Chinese troop movements and, in particular, of the advance of four divisions against the Japanese positions north of Peiping and south of Tientsin.

Two divisions were said to be moving down from Chahar province toward Nankow Pass, 30 miles northwest of Peiping, where Chinese regulars have been blocking the advance of a Japanese brigade for more than a week.

Two other divisions were reported advancing northward from Shantung province along the Pukow-Tientsin railroad. The newspaper Yomiuri predicted a concerted drive by the Chinese for the recovery of northern and eastern Hoped province, now under domination of the Japanese army.

On the eastern seacoast of Shantung province, Chinese troops were reported shelling Tsingtau, ready to open fire at the first sign of any attempt to land Japanese troops in the city.

center, through which medical facilities and practice in the entire territory will be improved and through which the whole southeast will be served.

"Tremendous Good."

"The thought of the tremendous good that can come to thousands of individuals, both poor and rich, through having made available to them the resources of a great medical center has impressed me. I realize that through my own efforts I can do little as a problem of such magnitude. I am of the opinion that your board through the Emory Medical School, which is pre-eminent in the southeast, should take the leadership in developing Atlanta's medical resources.

Philosophy of Life.

The note is typical of the Atlanta benefactor's spirit, his philosophy of life, his religion. Many people knew that he made money as very few do, but most of them never realized what he did with a great portion of it.

Before removing to Florida in 1924, Mr. Hopkins was one of the founders of the Good Samaritan clinic under the direction of the late Dr. Arch Elkin. It was to provide a home of its own and to take advantage of the bigger possibilities in benefiting those who are unable to do for themselves that Mr. Hopkins made this benefaction.

Surviving are his wife and two children, Lindsey Jr. and Mrs. Paul Ludwig, of Miami, Fla. Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

OVERDOING NEIGHBORHOOD

The whole story of the, now halted, action of the state department to lease six naval destroyers to Brazil has, in all probability, not been told. The state department is one branch of the federal government which does not act always in full light of publicity. Nor is it expected to. Everyone realizes that the delicate business of diplomacy necessitates a certain degree of reticence.

Nevertheless it appears as though the United States may have rather overdone the policy of "neighborliness" with other nations of the twin continents in proposing to furnish one nation with ships of war, especially when another nation, a closer neighbor to the one favored than this, raises pertinent objections.

Inasmuch as it is the inflexible policy of this nation, approved officially and by all good citizens, that the only possible war involving either North or South America in which this country could participate would be one of defense, it is difficult to understand a plan to lend United States destroyers to another American nation.

If intended for defensive purposes only, surely the United States could gain the same end by announcing that its navy would be available, in case of need, to help defend any wronged country in either of the two Americas.

And it is beyond conception that the state department would lease or lend or sell American destroyers for offensive use.

The United States government had best find some not too undignified road to cancellation of its Brazilian deal and keep its own destroyers under its own flag where their use can be controlled by their proper owners, the people of this country.

THE PINK BOLL WORM.

Prompt action of Alabama, Florida and Georgia, with the aid of federal authorities, to prevent infestation by the pink boll worm illustrates the new efficiency of the human war against natural pests.

By this early, united action the cotton producers of the three states will, in all probability, be saved from the ravages of a pest which could, if unchecked, bring final ruin to the most important crop of the southeast.

Quick discovery of any infestation by the pink boll worm, if it has already invaded the states involved, and proper quarantine of the affected areas, if any, should result in early stamping out of the pest.

The entomology departments of the federal government and the states demonstrated that a pest may be defeated in the case of the screw worm. This menace to live stock was defeated in a determined war some years ago and is now almost unknown in Georgia. Constant guard against possible reinfestation has minimized the ravages of the screw worm in the state.

Similar results can be secured in the case of the pink boll worm. There should be no restrictions upon the federal and state officials in their war against this worm and no slackening of their alert readiness to stamp out the pest the moment it is discovered.

DALTON'S CENTENNIAL

All Georgia will focus its attention, the first week in September, upon Dalton, progressive and delightful city of the northwestern part of the state which will stage a week-long festival in celebration of the 100th anniversary of its founding.

In pageant, carnival, parades, dance and other elaborate affairs, the people of Dalton will review the century of history and progress which has passed since the city first began. Throngs of friends and visitors from all parts of the state will attend the events and the fame of Dalton's hospitality will spread anew.

No community in the south excels Dalton as a city of lovely homes and charming people. In business and industry it has built firmly and well. It is blessed with a location which brings equable weather all the year round and its tree-shaded avenues breathe the very spirit of quiet and full living.

Many of Georgia's best citizens claim Dalton as their place of nativity and from her gentle homes have gone forth men and women who have contributed much to the betterment of the world and the increased happiness of human society.

Every other community in Georgia will proudly congratulate Dalton on the occasion of her centennial fete and wish the capital of Whitfield county another hundred years of success as complete as the first.

Electricians will tell you never to read victory claims from the war fronts aloud to a lie detector.

With the new technique of falling to declare a stage of belligerence, peace not only hath its victories no less renowned than war, but the same number of dead.

We can't think of a business opportunity that has stared publishers in the face as long as a loose-leaf atlas.

SIMPLE COURTESY

There is a bill now before congress to prohibit picketing of foreign diplomatic offices in Washington. That there should be any opposition to its enactment is one of those strange phenomena in democratic government which are apparently inevitable even though unaccountable.

It is only since the birth of Communism and the revelation that there is a small percentage of Communists among the people of this country that picketing of diplomatic offices has become a practice. Prior to Communist activities demonstrations against the official representatives of foreign governments in this country were practically unknown.

If for no other reason than to uphold the reputation of American hospitality, Communist-inspired picketing of foreign embassies must be stopped. Properly accredited representatives and officials of other countries are here as the guests of the United States. Their offices and homes are unguarded because it is assumed they will always be treated with that courtesy to be expected from a civilized country toward its official guests.

That a little group of radical malcontents should be permitted to make themselves obnoxious to these national guests is entirely out of accord with the spirit of the American people as a whole.

Prohibition of such picketing in no wise would interfere with the proper rights of an American citizen. There is ample channel for criticism of any public question, be it domestic or foreign, in public meetings, in the press and by petition.

Officials and attaches of foreign embassies, by reason of their diplomatic status, are debarred from return when they are the objectives of such Communist activity. In this helplessness they have a right to expect the protection of their official host, the government of the United States.

LIP SERVICE, ANYWAY

Italy, Germany and Japan, now the most belligerent trio in the brotherhood of nations, have formally expressed approval of the world peace policy of America, as expressed in the appeal of Secretary of State Cordell Hull for abstention from force as a factor in international policy and for non-interference of one nation in the internal affairs of others.

To a large part of the world this attitude by the governments of the militaristic trio will appear strange. Yet it accords with the truest thoughts of the majority of mankind in all nations. The proportion of any population which actually desires war is small. At least, that desires actual, individual participation in modern war.

Secretary Hull's plea likewise drew endorsement from China and from Spain, the two nations in which actual warfare is now raging. Nearly three-score other powers have also signified their approval.

The mailed fist is rendered impotent when there is no strength in the public opinion that forms the arm to propel that weapon. And it is significant that all nations, regardless of the bombastic struttings of overly ambitious military leaders, feel called upon to agree to the principles of peace.

While there is universal recognition that man is essentially a peace-loving creature, there is still hope for the ultimate triumph of the spirit of brotherhood and realization of the dream of permanent, world-wide harmony.

What's as tiresome as waiting for the 2,000-000-mile tail of a comet to spell out the name of the chewing gum in lights?

Americans caught in China are using French flags, as they are easiest to make. The secret of cutting a five-pointed star by hand died, they think, with Betsy Ross.

One who claims to know says women don't cry as they used to. It's all a matter of learning to keep the smoke out of the eyes.

Has Tokyo never thought of collecting stamps, butterflies or first editions? Must it be China?

Editorial of the Day

"TIL CALL HER OLD GLORY"

(From The Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

It was back in 1831 that Captain William Driver, daring young seaman, sailed away from his native Salem in Massachusetts for a trip around the world. It was decided by the captain's friends that he should have a new flag for this eventful trip. They made for him a banner 12 feet wide and 24 feet long, and it was presented with appropriate ceremonies.

As the flag rose to the masthead of the little sailing vessel and its folds caught the wind, Captain Driver shouted, "I'll call her Old Glory, boys, Old Glory."

And so the crew. Always at the mast in many a voyage, the Stars and Stripes was not merely the American flag, but it was Old Glory, just as Captain Driver had christened it. It went with the captain's ship around the world. It floated over it when he was beset and almost destroyed by cannibals in the South Sea Islands, and was the signal of succor to 70 descendants of mutineers of the British ship Bounty who were taken back to Pitcairn island, far off the captain's course.

In 1837 Captain Driver quit the sea and moved to Nashville. Old Glory came with him. Three times a year, Washington's birthday, St. Patrick's, which was also his own, and the Fourth of July, the huge banner was hung from a window in the captain's home on a rope stretched across the street. It took a conspicuous part in the political campaigns of the day, and Nashville citizens came to know it as Old Glory, too, and came to love and admire the captain.

Along came the Civil War. Captain Driver's family was extremely southern. But the old captain remained firm in the convictions of his youth. His one thought was of Old Glory. When a group of Nashville citizens demanded of him that he surrender Old Glory he vigorously refused, and sewed it up in a quilt.

But in 1862 his time came. Nashville fell. As the Union army marched in, Captain Driver met the commander and proudly told him that Old Glory was safe. An hour later the banner was floating from the capitol building. The incident received wide publicity throughout the north and east. The eventful christening of 30 years before was called to mind, and the story of how the Stars and Stripes came to be known as Old Glory went down in the history of the country.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Not Liberalism. Spoils.

The appointment of Senator Black to the supreme court is cheap. I can find no other one word to apply to it. Taking advantage of the senate's club spirit, and of the senate's own cheap promotion of Senator Robinson for the post, for the purpose of putting the President in a hot spot—Mr. Roosevelt has pulled another smart trick. Or is it so smart? It confirms those who have opposed the court packing bill in the conviction that the President does not want to liberalize the supreme court but to abolish it by turning it into a chorus of yes-men for the executive and congress. The political result will be to make the New Deal opposition in congress stronger, and more timorous of passing any kind of social legislation.

Let us say clearly that where the present court has been divided, this column has almost always agreed with the minority of dissenting judges. It has agreed because of respect for the quality of their minds, the breadth of their spirits, their learning, and the logic and reason of their arguments. This appointment is not merely an attack on the supreme court—by sending to it a man who does not believe in its essential function. It is a blow to democratic government—because the biggest problem of democracies is how to keep alive respect for intellectual integrity and rational processes.

An honest conservative could have accepted the appointment to the supreme court of Judge Learned Hand, or Dean Clark, of Yale, or Professor Felix Frankfurter, or Donald Richberg. All of these are eminent liberal jurists, who believe in constitutional government and know what it is. Honest conservatives, whose concern is not the protection of existing interpretations of property rights, but is the protection of reason and dignity in American institutions, should, and have been proud of the presence on the bench of Justices Brandeis, Cardozo, and Stone. But Senator Black is not in their category. Rather he is in the category of Justice McReynolds, who was also a political appointee, and has not developed, but offers dissenting opinions in the form of die-hard orations. We expect the same kind of non-judicial oratory from Senator Black.

Does anyone who has ever heard Senator Black conduct an inquiry believe that his is the judicial temper? When he snarls at someone, called supposedly as an expert, to testify in the wages and hours hearings, "Aren't you an anti-New Dealer?" As though no man's opinion were worth anything unless he shared the senator's social and political views.

What is the function of the supreme court, and what qualities of mind and spirit should characterize its judges? Let us not ask controversial questions. Let us turn to eminent and famous liberals. Says Justice Cardozo, answering the first question, in his brilliant and beautiful little book, "The Function of the Judicial Process":

"The utility of an external power, restraining legal judgment is not to be measured by counting the occasions of its exercise. The great ideals of liberty and equality are preserved against the assaults of expediency, the expediency of the passing hour, the erosion of small encroachments, the scorn and derision which have no patience with general principles, by enshrining them in constitutions, and consecrating to their defense a body of defenders, by conscious or subconscious influence, the presence of this power, aloof in the background, tends to stabilize and rationalize the legislative judgment, to infuse it with the glow of principle, to hold the standard aloft and visible, for those who must run the race and keep the faith."

Somehow I can't see Senator Black preserving great ideals against the erosion of small encroachments, or being consecrated to the defense of anything except his leader's policy, or infusing that with any glow of principle.

And who should be chosen as judges? Professor Frankfurter approvingly quotes Judge Learned Hand, in his essay on the supreme court in the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences:

"The spirit, and culture, and insight which should be possessions of a justice of the supreme court, have been stated by Judge Learned Hand:

"I venture to believe that it is as important to a judge, called upon to pass on questions of constitutional law, to have at least a faint acquaintance with Acton and MacIntyre, with Thucydides, Gibbon, and Carlyle, with Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, and Milton, with Machiavelli, Montaigne, and Rabelais, with Bacon, Hume, and Kant, as with the books which have been specifically written on the subject. For in such matters, everything turns on the spirit, with which he approaches the questions before him. . . . Men do not gather figs from thistles nor supply institutions from judges whose outlook is limited by parish or class."

Appointment to the supreme court is the highest civilian honor which this country can bestow on any of her citizens. Learning, humanity, serenity, humility, love for principles and conservation to them—these are the virtues which ought to reward. Senator Black's qualifications are experience as a police court judge and unswerving loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt. With all the promises of a better civil service, we have finally carried the spoils system to the supreme bench, openly and cynically. It's a sin and a shame. SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

While looking for the rainbow
And its pot of fairy gold,
He failed to plow the home lot, now
He's penniless and old.

Canine Victims.
The Humane Society says an average of 15 dogs a day are killed on the streets of the city by automobiles.

The other afternoon a sudden clatter on our block lifted me, startled, from an easy chair. Half a dozen dogs were barking excitedly, and Bootie, the family poodle, went scurrying out of the front door to add her yaps to the chorus.

Above all the other noise, however, was a pitiful wail of agony. Suddenly it sounded. I really thought, at first, a child had been run over.

But it was a dog. It seemed to have a broken spine. Sitting, unable to rise from its haunches, and actually wailing its suffering to the heavens.

I knew the dog. An attractive little terrier neighbor had raised from puppyhood. They came running out and, pathetically, the dog stopped howling when they came near. They carried it to the veterinary hospital to see what could be done.

No, it wasn't a hit and run driver. The autoist couldn't help the accident and stopped quickly, coming back to see what he could do.

A Bad Habit.
So many dogs take insane delight in rushing out, barking, at every passing automobile. It is one of the hardest canine habits to break of them all. Why they will do it I don't know. But, so long as they continue it, there'll be no peace for the owners in Atlanta's petland.

Just what cure to apply seems doubtful. You can't keep an active dog penned up forever. And you can't doom the same creature to a walking leash for exercise. Seems as though we'll just have to reconcile ourselves to a certain percentage of traffic martyrs among the canines. Of course, if you can train your own pet to intelligent safety first and make the animal refrain of rushing out into wheeled danger, so much the better.

A Picture I Must Hear.

That subheading is not intended to be paradox. For the picture "The Girl Said No," which is billed at the Rialto theater for Friday, and, according to scout reports, it is well filled with songs and choruses and duets and ensembles from a whole raft of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. And it is the hearing of these grand old numbers I'm keen about. Of course, I'll see the picture, too. But the visual entertainment doesn't matter so long as the sound recording is good.

Fanaticism is supposed to be bad, about anything. And usually is. But on the subject of Gilbert and Sullivan I'll freely admit I'm a fanatic. Even boast of it.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Mischievous NEW YORK. Imprudence Aug. 17.—From the writings of Hugh Johnson and certain intimations, written and verbal, regarding the unselected powers in Washington, I receive an impression of mischievous imprudence, or something a little more so, which I am unable to define in certain of Mr. Roosevelt's selfless advisors.

There is a suggestion of plotting of political imps with no responsibility, tinkering with the form of government to the peril of our liberties and by vague but persistent mention of a house in Q street. I am given to wonder what goes on, anyway.

It may be remembered that there was a mysterious house in K street which figured in the disclosures of monkey business in the Harding administration and that the reporters who were on the job in those days either didn't know about this nest or were too conservative to write what they did know.

When, finally, the story did come out, Harding was dead and the damage was all done so the country got nothing but a scandal, whereas a little old-fashioned, city-wide reporting of the type which distinguished the old World and the St. Louis Star-Times and Post-Dispatch might have broken the story a couple of years earlier.

I suppose I show a lot of nerve suggesting that someone else should do the spade work on this job but I am no good at this kind of reporting and anyway, I hardly know my way around town. I don't even know the "Q" stands for, but it could mean Queer street.

Is There Is, or— Maybe there is no such story as I imagine, but so much hinting and winking as we see in the papers these days indicates that some people know more than they are willing to take the risk of telling without the backing of a congressional inquiry. And, remembering how very delicately an administration committee handled the income tax matters of the Roosevelt family after they had boldly belted around a lot of other citizens on Mr. Roosevelt's general accusation of unethical and immoral conduct, there seems to be no likelihood of an honest investigation.

Yet it is only natural to wonder who are these mysterious operators who get together at night to conspire against the constitution under the general license of some President's which is referred to as the President's overwhelming mandate.

He never got any mandate to turn the government over to a lot of persons unknown for revision in the direction of a dictatorship in the guise of liberalism or progress and if he thinks he was elected to further that it is a good thing that some members of the party also feel aware of a mandate to head him off.

Several times I have made casual inquiries of men who are well-informed on the life of the town as to who is who and what happens in the little circle of nocturnal club life, but all I hear is that they are a ring who happen to be the fair-haired boys of the administration for the time being. But the boss gets crushed on individuals and their ideas and may give them their unconditional release any time he wants to, just as he has released various others before now.

Speaking To Himself This is only wondering out loud, so to speak, but in doing so I have as a basis the frequent references to a clique which have appeared in the writings of Washington, men who are too responsible to write from imagination and too practical to shy at spooks. Wire-tapping and key-hole work are not the function of journalism, least of all in Washington where the ethics of the business are the highest and quite superior, incidentally, to those of government departments which may desire information for use against suspected persons, including political opponents.

Not that anyone has ever suggested anything illegal in connection with this mysterious little group of serious thinkers. But there is a strong suspicion of sinister and mischievous purpose and of delight in sly tricks against the constitution, all within the constitution, which is a stretchy document and would be more so if its interpretation were given to supreme court judges of that mind which saw nothing evil in the Ku Klux Klan. And if we are to have a justice of that mind in the clear-the-way signal is given."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Sunday, August 18, 1912:
"Chief of Police Beavers has at last gotten his automobile. It is a touring car, capable of holding five of 'Atlanta's finest,' and is equipped with a powerful engine that will 'make time,' when the clear-the-way signal is given."

American Ships Armed Twenty years ago President Wilson, abed with a cold, ordered American merchant-ships armed. The day before, the senate had abandoned a long standing rule permitting unlimited debate, to end filibustering against the President's "armed neutrality" bill. Same day the President issued a proclamation calling an extra session of congress to meet April 16.

Censorship of news began. The navy asked newspapers and other publications not to take note of the arrival or departure of any ships. They complied. Notable victories were claimed in Paris and London as both British and French forces advanced on the western front, the former in Baupayne region, the latter between Verdun and Rheims. What was happening was that Germans were voluntarily and systematically withdrawing in the north to the famed Hindenburg line, the strongest fortified entrenchment of concrete—ever constructed. As they withdrew they destroyed their dugouts, provision depots and roads, and made their trenches useless.

The German general staff no longer envisioned a decisive vic-

The modern detective or mystery novel is a piece of carpentering. When the foundation is laid, the rest is a simple matter of nailing on more boards.

The plot is that of a short story. In fact, the author's chief difficulty is in stringing it out to fill a book. The hero is often on the verge of trapping the villain and winning the girl too soon.

To prevent this misfortune and keep the story going, the hero makes some dumb mistake or forgets something vital or foolishly invites an accident, thus giving the villain another chance and the author another chapter.

You wonder how such a smart fellow, sure to triumph in the end, could be such an exasperating idiot. The answer is that he couldn't.

Success and failure are habits and the winner wins consistently after he gets started.

There are school kids who spend two years in the same grade or get promoted with benefit of charity, usually for want of trying, but the average youngster's record is an unbroken succession of personal triumphs from the first grade to the last year of college. He wins every time. And there is no reason why the habit of winning should not continue after school if he follows the same process.

Chrysler's biography, now being printed as a serial, is the typical rags-to-riches saga of America. There were long hard years of working as a mechanic in railroad shops and studying correspondence courses at night, but when this schooling was finished and he had graduated from the lathe to a desk, there were no dark times of failure but a steady climb to the top.

The most successful men make mistakes—costly ones—but they aren't up today and down tomorrow because of ignorance or stupidity. Their development is a natural growth, and they hold their place because they are qualified for it. A great surgeon doesn't bungle every second operation.

The top job isn't the hard one. A Paderewski's playing seems magical to the novice, but it is easy for him. His hard work was done while he was learning how. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

This Morning Talmudic Tales

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

By DAVID MORANTZ.

"And the wheel's kick and the wind's son
And the white sail shaking,
And a gray mist on the sea's face
And a gray dawn breaking . . ."

With more of the sea than any other part of America, the south is entitled to be America's most sea-faring, sea-loving land. This column is written today somewhere off the coast of the south on a liner en route from Jacksonville and Charleston to New York. Captain Brown, a loyal sailor who knows all seven of the seas and most of the ports thereof, has let us stand on the bridge with him, inspect charts and instruments, examine the amazing modern apparatus of steamship plating, and have tales of other times and other ships and learn about "the hundred fathom curve."

The "hundred fathom curve" is a line extending up the Atlantic coast several hundred miles from shore where the floor of the ocean drops suddenly from an average depth of about 20 to 40 fathoms to a depth of more than a hundred fathoms and continues to drop until it is thousands of fathoms deep in mid-ocean. The existence of this curve suggests that it may have been the southern shore line some age ago and that the sea has taken possession of a once great area of the south.

The possession-taking goes on. As the liner pulls out of dock at Charleston the surrounding waters are muddy with contributions from the Ashley and Cooper rivers, red with soils of the south washed down those rivers to the sea. We are miles ocean-ward before this mud color changes first to light green and then to the infinite dark blue of the sea. Off many other southern ports the same color scheme runs—a great area of the sea muddied with southern soil gone to waste, neither useful nor ornamental any more.

But beyond the mud there is the clean sea, the infinite, clean blue sea of the south. The waves are riding, the ship is riding, the sunlight is riding, and all to a tempo of "one, two, three." Maritime motion, in this writer's count is all to wait time, slow waltz, majestic, infinitely rhythmic waltz. Perhaps that is why the orchestra in the big stern cabin plays Strauss.

People need to go to sea for their souls' sake, for their temper, points of view, sense of proportion—particularly, for their sense of proportion. You can't well be nervous, irritable, petty, grudge-holding or spiteful at sea. The dimensions of it discourage such traits and such nervous agitation. There is much agitation on the waves, little ones over-running big ones, white caps breaking nervously as far as the eye goes, the variegated wash of the waters as the ship pushes through, the play of shadow and sunlight on the face of the water, the comings and goings of the gulls, the million little excitement of it all, slides, aboard and beyond. But over and above and beyond it all,

RIVERS PAVES WAY FOR AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION

Governor To Include Them in Call for Extra Session; Local Bills Allowed.

To avoid any possibility of a second extra session of the general assembly between now and next year's election, Governor Rivers announced yesterday that he would include constitutional amendments in his call for the projected special session which tentatively is set to begin the Monday following Thanksgiving.

The Governor said he knew of no constitutional amendments to come up during the session but that he would include them in his call so that if any are proposed they may be acted upon.

Revised Tax Program.
It may be that a revised tax program, which the assembly is expected to enact during the special session, will necessitate one or more constitutional amendments and the Governor is of the opinion that should he not include amendments in his call for the session it would be necessary to have a second session for that purpose if the amendments were to be voted on in the 1938 general election.

Governor Rivers said he had received numerous requests from members of the senate and house of representatives to include local bills in the special session and that he intends to do so. The Governor said:

"There were many local bills which died with the sine die adjournment of the regular session last spring. The representatives and senators are anxious to have some of these passed at the special session and many of them appear to take care of local emergencies. Local bills will be included in the call."

Civil Service Bill.
Governor Rivers previously had announced that he would include in his call for the session a provision for the enactment of a bill providing civil service for state employees. Such a bill was passed by the senate in the regular session but no action was taken on it in the house.

Various groups have requested the Governor to permit legislation affecting them during the special session but thus far he has not announced the program, other than tax legislation, constitutional amendments, local bills and the civil service plan.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR REV. ROY MORRIS

The funeral of the Rev. W. Roy Morris, Baptist minister of Dewey, Okla., and former Atlantan, will be conducted at 10:30 o'clock, central standard time, this morning from the Bowden Baptist church, Bowden, Ga.

The Rev. Dittman will perform the services, with burial in Bowden cemetery.

Rev. Morris died in Dewey last Thursday at the age of 40. A native of Atlanta, he lived here until about 15 years ago.

Society Preyed Upon by Musical-Fagin in Raids Here

Atlantans, society people in particular, many just back from vacations, yesterday took good long looks at their articles held by Atlanta police after a raid on caches in various sections of the city. The articles were stolen by a negro "Fagin." More than $5,000 worth of loot is now being held by police.

Perhaps grandfather's clock is among these articles. Certainly dad's house slippers are included. Maybe mother's quilt is also here. Everything from a baby's safety pin to the kitchen sink was among the articles stolen. The burglars were even musically inclined. Notice the cornet and the radio. What a tune! What a burglary!

Valuable Trinkets, From Grandmother's Fruit Spoons to Your Husband's Christmas Ties, Recovered After 75 Robberies on North Side.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

That silver pitcher and the six silver ice tea glasses that Uncle Bill gave you for your wedding present. Remember?

And that silver bureau set friend husband gave you the first Christmas you were married. And father's rifle, what with the hunting season a scant three months off.

And what about those silver fruit spoons of grandmother's which were hidden under the gardenia bush when the Yankees came?

Silver, all kinds, house furnishings, clothes, jewelry, baggage and many other valuables amounting to fully $5,000 stolen from probably 75 homes in fashionable sections of the city were on exhibit last night in a storeroom at the police station and more was coming in hourly to add to the loot seized with the arrest of Walter Kimball, alias Kimbrough, 30, and Hubert Smith, 13.

The arrest followed the questioning of a supposed negro Fagin who read the society sections of the Atlanta newspapers to find out what Atlanta families were away from the city.

It wasn't all silverware that stuck to the fingers of the robbers. They even went so far as to make away with a three-piece bedroom suite.

That Pink Negligee.
And clothes. In case of fire mislaid you have that pink satin negligee to don to dodge the blues. Someone else will have to replace a white satin quilted evening coat, printed chiffons, sport clothes, swapper coats.

But it wasn't just to the ladies that bad luck and robbery were focused. The men came in for their share to the tune of at least two dozen suits, and shirts, overcoats, several dozen ties (those awful Christmas ones included), eight pairs of shoes, and bathrobes.

If you've been late to work it's because the burglar stole the clock—five of them—and if you haven't been able to hear Charlie McCarthy and W. C. Fields it's because the radio (five of them) was stolen when you and the family went to the seashore with your cousin from Milwaukee.

Five Feet of Blankets.
And don't grumble about the hot weather. What would happen if summer breezes turned into summer freezes and your blankets were among the five-foot pile in the storeroom?

Cocktail (legal or not) shakers didn't skip the eye nor the hand of the society thief. And how will those pictures of junior be made with the five cameras missing?

And don't call your doctor until you are sure it wasn't his hypo needle that was stolen. Some literary mind is at recess now that a very expensive portable typewriter was among articles "missing."

A set of spoons bought at the World Fair in Chicago—one from each building with appropriate engraving; one from the Columbian Exposition showing the Woman's Building; two from Plattville, Wis., one bearing the engraving of the state capitol at Madison, Wis., all of which were once among your souvenirs, are now at the jail for safe keeping—for a while at least. And many more articles, valuable for sentimental as well as financial reasons, were among the stolen goods.

Five Others Held.
In the meantime, police were holding five other negroes, each charged with suspicion of burglary in connection with the robberies. They gave their names as Oliver Williams, 45; Henry Parks, 29; Honzana Gilliard, 28; Elvira Bragg, 55, and Robert Young, 32.

Kimball was arrested Saturday by Atlanta Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. M. Coppenger, and DeKalb Chief J. T. Dailey. Fulton County Patrolmen M. H. Green and Huber Reed, working with the Atlanta and DeKalb authorities, said the homes burglarized included those of County Commissioner Edwin Johnson, Haynes McFadden and Attorney Frank Tindall.

Detectives arrested two negroes in another series of burglaries last night. Grady Smith, 26, of Husband Put Under $500 Peace Bond After Wife's Story to Court.

Anyone who "goes around beating up his wife" had better steer clear of Fulton county municipal court, Chief Judge Luther Z. Rosser asserted yesterday as he placed the husband of Mrs. Nell Jones, former Fulton county school teacher, under $500 peace bond.

Already Mrs. Jones had filed suit for divorce because Jones reported their secret marriage to the county board of education and caused her to lose her job. And yesterday Mrs. Jones appeared in Judge Rosser's court bruised and scratched and bearing a peace warrant to restrain her husband from inflicting injury upon her.

"Last Sunday he beat me up and dragged me from an automobile I was trying to leave in," she told the court.

Mrs. Jones recounted how she and Jones, a Fairburn-to-College Park bus driver, had been secretly married July 4, 1934. But they did not actually live together until July 1 of this year, she said, after her husband had reported the marriage to the board and caused her to lose her job.

"He told me that he loved another and said that one of us should get out so that he could be with the one he really loved," Mrs. Jones in her petition for divorce Monday set out. She reiterated this before Judge Rosser yesterday, but the husband denied the existence of "another girl."

Marks of Battle.
Mrs. Jones bore the marks of her "battle" with the husband, which she said occurred Sunday as she tried to leave. She attributed a scratch on her arm to the attempt of Jones to drag her from a car in which she was about to leave for Atlanta.

She had decided that six weeks of living with Jones was enough—although they had actually been married more than two years—when she determined to leave Sunday. The petition for divorce, filed the following day, set out that from the first day they began life together, her husband was cold and indifferent.

Supported Himself.
He purposely reported their marriage to the school board and caused her instant dismissal, the petition charges, although she had supported herself entirely and even occasionally given Jones what was left of her salary.

Meanwhile Jones was making $75 a month himself, she charged. But she maintained that she had even paid all the expenses of time she spent in summer school since their marriage. Following filing of the divorce petition Judge John D. Humphries ordered Jones placed under a $100 "exeat" bond—to keep him from fulfilling a threat that "he was going to leave town" and to insure his presence at the hearing September 3.

Mrs. Jones in her suit asked a divorce, temporary and permanent alimony, and attorneys' fees.

AVONDALE, DECATUR RECEIVE PWA CASH

Ten Other Cities in State Granted Allotments by President Roosevelt.

Public Works Administration funds for Avondale and Decatur and ten other cities in Georgia were among the 280 allotments totaling $18,033,485 approved yesterday by President Roosevelt, Administrator Ickes announced from Washington.

Avondale will receive a grant of $34,883 and Decatur will get an $11,248 grant and a $12,000 loan. These funds will be used for the construction of schools, R. E. Adams, acting state director of the PWA, said last night.

Other Georgia cities to receive allotments are Bowdon, $8,100; Cumming, $7,875; grant, $5,500; loan; Dawson, $29,250; Deering, $26,590; Eton, $15,423; Folkston, $20,863; Gore, $9,225; McDonough, $35,415; Monroe, $27,810, and Riverdale, $5,727.

The 280 allotments provide for grants of $17,091,658 and loans of $941,800.

Ickes said the list represents the first survey of all applications of schools having fire hazards, preference being given to applications calling for demolition of old buildings. All applications for replacement of burned buildings were approved.

THREE-CENT BOUNTY ON COTTON ASKED

Byrnes Seeks Allotment From Tariff Receipts to Aid Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, asked congress today to allot $65,000,000 from tariff receipts for bounty payments up to 3 cents a pound on this year's cotton crop.

In accordance with an agreement between President Roosevelt and congressmen from cotton states, Byrnes proposed that the "price adjustment payments" be made only to producers who comply with the prospective 1938 agricultural adjustment program.

Byrnes advanced his proposal as an amendment to the third deficiency bill, now pending in the house.

The payments would be based on the difference between 12 cents a pound and the average price on 10 spot cotton markets for the period from August to next January, inclusive, but in no case would exceed 3 cents a pound.

A MAN'S ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS

WILL MEAN MUCH TO HIS FAMILY

WILL your life insurance receive the full exemption from estate tax . . . or will it add to the taxes your estate must pay? The difference may mean hundreds or thousands of dollars to your family.

Will your insurance be tied up in probate with the rest of your estate, perhaps for more than a year . . . or will it be immediately available for your family's living expenses and for investment?

Will it provide your estate with cash to pay cash bequests, estate and inheritance taxes, debts and administration costs, thus making it unnecessary for your executor to sell other assets, possibly at a sacrifice, to raise the cash?

Will its investment supervision depend on one individual . . . or will it be the result of the group judgment of our officers and directors who select and supervise investment of funds in life insurance trusts created with this bank as trustee?

Answer these questions, first, by having ample life insurance . . . second, by conferring with your insurance counselor and our trust officer about the most effective plan for its future management.

Harris' Great Relief Pitching Aids Crackers To Win, 6-5

BREAK O'DAY!
Yesterday was a day featured somewhat by food. It began rather early when at 7:30 a. m., Miss Virginia was discovered sitting on the kitchen table with the rifled contents of a cake box in her possession. She had negotiated a footstool and a chair to reach the table.

At noon Mr. William Alexander was host to some of the football writers at a luncheon. He issued his football roster and one of his famous interviews in which he says nothing at all. At times it is difficult to get Mr. Alexander to admit the sun is shining. Even if it is. The reporters threatened to quote him along an optimistic line, such as "Don't See How We Can Lose One." Mr. Alexander threatened letters to the editors and publishers.

At another luncheon, Mr. Robert E. Lee Dodd, the Tech backfield coach, was having a swiss on rye with mustard. "I'm worried," said Mr. Dodd. "I wish our freshman team had been stronger last fall and I am worried about the one of this year."

"Even though you haven't seen it?"
"Even though I haven't seen it."

A friend came by and said: "I hear Tech has great backfield material and very poor line prospects."

"You've been talking to Mack Tharpe, the line coach," said Mr. Dodd.

"How'd you know?" asked the surprised friend.

"Well, I always speak highly of line outlook and he of the backfield," said Mr. Dodd. "But, I'll say this: No backfield gets anywhere without that line. I'm all for Mack Tharpe. Without his line, the backs can't go."

The two friends play a little game, kidding about their tasks.

Tharpe and Dodd are two very fine assets at Georgia Tech. They are excellent coaches and two of the most spectacular drivers of automobiles in the world. There is only one who can approach them for supplying automobile thrills. Mr. Ed Miles does not drive quite as fast. But he makes up for it by taking curves on the wrong side of the road. At 70 miles an hour this supplies a distinct thrill. It is excellent tonic for low blood pressure.

BULL-OR DEATH—IN THE AFTERNOON.

Joe Freitag came into the restaurant, panting. He came over to the table.

"Ever see a bull fight?" he asked.

"Never," we all replied.

"Never saw a bull fight! Imagine that! Why, that," he said, "is a great spectacle."

He glared at Bobby Dodd.

"There is no danger in a football game," he said. "In bull fighting there is."

He glared at your old partner.

"Baseball," he said, "is a sissy game. No danger at all."

"See Mr. Earl Mann, please, he handles all my baseball affairs," Mr. Freitag glared.

"You ought to see one," said Mr. Freitag. "Picadors, matadors, toreadors—death in the afternoon—never saw such excitement. Baseball—football—they are for sissies."

Mr. Freitag moved away from those interested in such feminine sports and sat down to order a steak, cooked rare. Dr. Harold Friedman, the chemist, was eating with us. "Keep an eye on him," he said. "He may have a bull fighter's sword under his coat." So we watched Mr. Freitag in the manner known as "warily."

Later on, Mr. Freitag was cooled down enough to report. He is just back from Mexico City. It was a grapp trip. The bull fights, while patently cruel, are nevertheless exciting. The flash of color, the charging bulls, the capes and the fearless wait by the bull fighter with his sword ready for the kill—they do supply an undeniable thrill which Mr. Ernest Hemingway worked into a book called "Death in the Afternoon."

Mr. Max Eastman wrote an essay about Mr. Hemingway called "Bull in the Afternoon," which only last week led to a brawl in a publisher's office. The subject is very much alive.

Mr. Freitag has promised another chapter of his own story.

A RADIO PEP TALK.

One of those collegiate automobiles rattled into our town a few days ago. But not until yesterday did I hear the football story it brought.

It was a story about that football game of last fall wherein Shorty Propst's little Southwestern football team all but ran those Vanderbilt Commodores off the field and won, 12 to 0, in one of the real upset victories.

"Coach told us on the train going up," said the Southwestern player, "that we had a chance to win. But we figured he was kidding us. Friday night before the game we had supper and then coach called us into a room."

"There is a radio program going on which I want you to hear," he said. Well, sir, it was Ray Morrison, the Vanderbilt coach, giving an interview. They asked him about games and finally they asked him about our game. We heard him say that Southwestern had a good little team but that Vanderbilt expected to win without too much trouble. He sounded like he didn't think so much of us."

"Well, that made us feel kind of mad. We talked it over. The next day we still were mad. So, we went to Coach Propst and we said, 'Coach, we don't want you to take a single one of us out there until we fall over dead.' So, we shook hands on it and we went out there. The first thing you know we had a touchdown. After that they never had a chance to beat us."

Curious things stir up a football team into a lot of fighting fools. Once Harry Mehre aroused the ire of the Georgia team at Yale by showing them the program. They were charging a dollar tops to see that game. Georgia won. After that the game was at the regular "big game" price.

A COACH'S DREAM.

Football has had a few really great forward passers. Two of the greatest were Dixie Howell, of Alabama's Rose Bowl champions, and Sammy Baugh, the Texas Christian lad. Both made All-American teams.

This fall both of them will be playing on the same football team. The Washington Redskins, a pro outfit, has signed them.

Having two passers such as they is something a coach dreams about. No college team ever had two. Few have had one.

BUFORD FIRST SEMI-PRO NINE TO WIN THREE

Shoemakers Rally To Defeat Asheboro and Then Crush Fort Crook.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 17.—Buford's rambling Bona Allens won their third straight start in the national semi-pro baseball tournament, defeating the Fort Crook 17th infantry of Nebraska by a 37 record score, 17 to 3. The Georgians thereby took the lead in the 1937 tournament. While a number of teams are undefeated, Buford became the first to win three games and thus assure itself of some substantial prize money.

The soldiers were outclassed and blew up badly in the third when Buford got 11 tallies. In the meantime, Bassett was hurling strong ball and was seldom in any trouble. Buford plays its next game Saturday or Sunday with its opponent not yet selected.

Buford wasted no time in getting scores, running in three in the first on two walks, a triple by Harris and a fly to the outfield. In the last half the soldiers scored on two boots and a single. Buford came back with 11 in the third for a tournament record to date. Nine hits rattled off the bats as Buford knocked out Fischer and continued off Lewis. Hits were by Harris, McQuinn, Morris, Bassett, who got a pair; Martin, Shipley and Herin. These hits, with two errors, two walks and a few mental lapses made one less than a dozen. Just when the umpires were turning in a call for the fire department the inning was completed on Baxter's roller to short.

Lewis held the Georgians for two frames but in the sixth Bassett started another rally with his third single of the game and a walk and singles by Harris and McQuinn with an error gave three runs. McQuinn ambled down to second on a walk to get put out and end this inning.

Baby Alfred Thompson Joins Trio of Family's 'Junior' Cousins

By Sally Forth

ANOTHER Junior joined the Thompson clan yesterday when Alfred Edwin Thompson Jr. was born at the Emory University hospital. The baby is one of a trio of first-born cousins, his father being a brother of Homer and Carl Thompson, fathers of Homer Jr. and Carl Jr.

The arrival of Alfred Jr. recalls to Sally's mind the popularity of the baby's father and uncles during their bachelor days when they were counted among Atlanta's beau brummels. 'Tis a safe bet that the trio of juniors will be equally as popular and beloved when they grow to young manhood.

By the way, when Alfred Jr. and his mother, who is the former Evelyn Sheffield, leave the hospital they will go to their new home on West Shadown, instead of returning to the apartment which Evelyn and Alfred have occupied since their marriage three years ago.

For the next two weeks Alfred Sr. will busy himself moving into the new home in order to have everything ready for the mother and his young namesake. Of colonial style of architecture, the two-story house is built of white clapboard. Aquamarine and mulberry red form the chief color motif of the lower floor's interior decoration.

The nursery occupies a large part of the second floor, where delicate flesh pink and pale blue shades predominate in the decorations and furnishings. No pains have been spared to make Alfred Jr.'s boudoir "a thing of beauty." Ivory furniture, on which is painted nursery rhymes and figures, is arranged against flesh-tinted walls adorned with blue ribbon bow-knot designs. White ruffled orandy curtains, tied with pink taffeta ribbon, cover the nursery windows. The exquisite shades of pink and blue are also expressed in the bassinet covering of pink point d'esprit trimmed with blue ribbon bows.

It will be a royal welcome extended the newest addition to the Thompson clan when he and his lovely mother arrive in early September at the new home.

THE cleverest of invitations have been issued by Laura and Francis Clarke to members of the news department of The Constitution to attend a swimming party and fish fry at their Cape Cod cottage on Powers Ferry road. They call their place the "Wilderness," because two years ago, when the covered wagon listed toward the left on Powers Ferry road, Laura and Francis moved their lares and penates into their white clapboard house. These pioneers began the beautification of the house and grounds, and they have a 60-foot swimming pool and fish-frying establishment down in the wooded dell.

Pen-and-ink sketches of musical instruments, a chef preparing to cook a delicious fish just out of the Chattahoochee river, and a funny-looking little man in the act of diving into the pool, are pictured at the bottom of the invitation. At the top, is a map of the road leading to the wilderness, and a drawing of the attractive home with the lazy Chattahoochee river flowing near by.

The clever invitations issued by the Clarkes read in part: "Since the Wilderness was first braved, the ultimate objective has been the staging of a regular old-fashioned Constitution family party. The scene is now set, and members of the news departments of The Constitution are invited to participate in a swimming party and a fish fry (with proper trimmings and addendums). Nature, in the Fulton county Wilderness, is still in the rough, so wear old clothes and shoes, and bring a swimming suit and a towel.

"The Clarkes want everyone who can make it to be there. Bring your wives. The members of the staff of the gentler sex can bring their husbands. It's going to be a regular party."

THE appointment of Senator Hugo Black to the supreme court recalls the fact that his charming wife often visited her uncle, the late Hugh Foster, when

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work as marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, ungrateful, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "gutting through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three decades of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "gutting through."

I'M CONSTIPATED
Mother, watch your baby carefully for signs of constipation. Her bowels are so important to her health. Often they come about as a result of temporary constipation or meager bowel movements. Her bowels can be relied upon as a mild and efficient laxative, so as many mothers will tell you. It is also important for you to know that in a child when your baby suffers with colic, indigestion or cold. When baby is annoyed with one of these ailments, it is most essential that he have good bowel movements because constipation greatly aggravates and increases the discomfort of such ills. POLICE DOG AIDS POSTMAN; DELIVERS MAIL IN DECATUR

Buster Each Day Covers Route of Mailman; Pork Chop Started It All.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Waiting for the postman is a big event in anyone's life. Buster is no exception. Buster is a five-year-old Belgian police dog. He is owned by Mrs. L. M. Coste, of 361 Leland terrace, N. E.

And it all started because of a pork chop! When Buster was three months old he ran away from home. His mother was killed while searching for her wayward pup. The motherless dog was petted more than usual by Mrs. Coste. Buster resented any outsider coming to the home. And this went for the postman, who was greeted with a growl when he appeared with the mail at the Coste home for the first time four and a half years ago.

Won by Chop. The second day, Uncle Sam's letter carrier, J. E. Wright, used a little psychology. When he arrived at the Coste home he brought along a pork chop for the dog. That settled it. On the third day he and Buster were friends for life. Now Buster accompanies Mr. Wright on his mail route through the East Lake-Decatur section.

It all begins early in the morning when Buster goes to the car stop at East Lake and College avenue to meet Postman Wright. It is usually around 7:30 or 8 o'clock. Buster sits and waits for his friend until 8:30, when the latter's mail delivery begins.

From house to house they go, up and down steps, down hill and up hill. It's all a big adventure for Buster, and woe be unto anyone who dares in any way attack Wright, for Buster is a fine watchdog and true to his tradition as a "one-man dog."

This was noticeable some time ago when a new postman took over the route during Wright's vacation. There was no Buster to accompany him from house to house.

Can Deliver Packages. It's against postoffice regulation for a postman to transfer mail delivery, but Buster is very capable of delivering letters and packages. His owner is aware of this. Frequently when she returns to her home from her downtown position Buster carries her packages.

Two years ago Buster was hit by a motorcycle from a near-by store. This resulted in a broken hip. From that time no motorcycles have evoked the ire of Buster except the one from the same establishment. This may prove that it's not only elephants that don't forget.

With the exception of days when Buster was unable to walk because of the accident he has not missed a day, rain or shine, sleet or snow, to accompany Wright on his route.

LATE RUSH KEEPS COURT AIDES BUSY

Scores of Suits Filed in Superior Court; Last Day for September Term.

Deputy clerks in Fulton superior court had their hands full yesterday long after other offices of the courthouse had locked for the day. It was "return day" in the clerk's office—the last day on which suits to come up in the September term of superior court can be filed.

More than 80 suits for divorce, damages, alimony and various other pleas for court writs had been filed at the regular 5 o'clock closing hour, but Atlanta and Fulton county lawyers rushing in with last-minute suits continued to fill Clerk J. W. Simmons' office.

One petitioner who was run over by railroad freight cars and lived to tell the tale was voicing his complaint in the form of a $50,000 damage suit against H. D. Pollard, as receiver for the Central of Georgia railroad.

Negligence Charged. The plaintiff, F. L. Irving, a switchman for the railroad, charges in his petition negligence of the Central of Georgia to conform to the federal safety appliance act, which would prohibit the railroad from using interstate commerce freight cars with unsafe appliances, such as brakes.

Irving charges that as he was riding a freight car over to a siding, he was instructed to apply the brake for a stop. The brake shaft and chain was old and rusty, the petition alleges, and broke when Irving attempted to apply them. He was thrown to the ground in front of the oncoming cars and was run over by the heavy steel trucks. The wheels did not pass over his body.

Irving will "be deformed for the remainder of his life" as the result of injuries he received, the petition states. He was 38 years old at the time of the accident April 16 and was earning $200 a month. Since the accident, however, he charges that he has been unable to work.

Many Other Suits. Other damage suits amounting to several thousands of dollars in all kept Deputy Clerks Harry Magbee, D. W. Brown and J. H. Bush busy entering the suits on the books long after closing time in order that they may be heard in the September court term. Ordinarily it's a busy day when 25 suits are filed, but they were expecting more than 100 yesterday and said that the office would not close until the last suit had been filed.

Buster No Bust in "Carrying the Mail"

Buster, a five-year-old police dog owned by Mrs. L. M. Coste, 361 Leland terrace, N. E., has his ears tuned for the whistle of the postman. And when he hears it Buster is all set to "carry the mail" with his pal. Buster became a postman-dog all because of a pork chop.

From house to house, up and down steps, and by mail boxes, go the postman and Buster. Here they are at a mail box collecting letters left by residents of the neighborhood. The postman, J. E. Wright, is very attached to his "assistant."

And Mrs. Roy Brown, 310 East Lake drive, is being greeted by Buster and Wright with Monday's mail. Buster is polite but efficient in making speedy deliveries. There's one thing he doesn't do—that's to read the picture or plain postal cards.

Hunters Warned Against Baiting Field for Doves

Georgia hunters were warned yesterday against baiting fields for doves and against off-season shooting as the new regional office of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, with James Silver as director, opened at 1013 Glenn building.

Two fields, one baited with ice cream salt and the other with wheat and cracked corn, have been discovered by federal game agents within 40 miles of Atlanta, John Boswell, game management agent, said.

The dove season in Georgia now runs from September 15 to October 15 instead of September 1-30 as it did last year, Boswell said. The fact that state licenses were printed some time ago does not change the dates, he added.

Chief function of the new office will be to supervise the 23 federal wildlife and waterfowl refuges in this region, totaling 529,177 acres. The largest of these refuges is the newly acquired Oketuknee swamp, comprising 296,824 acres in southwestern Georgia.

Silver said the region office, which includes Georgia, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and the District of Columbia, will also be concerned with the control of rodents and other mammals injurious to agriculture and game.

FAIR AND WARM FORECAST TODAY

Generally fair weather may be expected for Atlanta today with temperature extremes near 70 and 90 degrees, the Weather Bureau predicted yesterday. Only widely scattered showers have occurred in the south since Monday morning, the bureau announced. Today, however, may bring partly cloudy weather for Georgia, with conditions unsettled on the coast.

Temperature extremes yesterday ranged between 72 and 89 degrees.

BRANTLEY'S DIGEST REJECTED BY STATE

Commission Refuses Lands for Taxation Below $2 an Acre.

NAHUNTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—(P) Tax Commissioner W. R. Strickland said today the Georgia Revenue Commission rejected the Brantley county 1937 tax digest.

He said the commission informed him this action was taken because they "would not accept any land for taxation at less than $2 an acre."

Chairman J. B. Jones, of the state revenue commission, confirmed the refusal of the commission to accept the digest, but declared that body did not suggest any minimum limit for assessing property.

Jones said, however, the Brantley county digest "should be increased between 10 and 20 per cent."

Strickland said the Brantley county board of equalizers placed a $1.25 per acre valuation on large tracts of timberland.

After the assessment was fixed, a group of residents filed a petition in superior court asking removal of the board.

The refusal of the commission to accept the Brantley county digest is the second similar refusal this year. Jones said the Barrow county board made a 10 per cent reduction in assessments which the commission did not approve. The assessment was later made to conform to the commission's wishes, Jones said.

CANADA VETOES SOCIAL AID PLAN

Alberta's Banking Measure Killed by Action.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 17.—(UP) The Canadian government today vetoed the drastic banking measures adopted by the Alberta legislature to further the aims of the social credit government in that province.

An order vetoing the acts, which provided for licensing of banking personnel throughout Alberta, became effective immediately. The action followed refusal of the prime minister of Alberta to delay enforcement until the Canadian supreme court could rule on them.

FOUR WHITE MEN HELD AFTER DEATH OF NEGRO

DAWSON, Ga., Aug. 17.—(P) Sheriff J. H. Turner said he was holding four white men today in connection with the death of a negro farm hand.

The negro, listed by Sheriff Turner as Will Gatewood, 29, died Saturday.

The sheriff said he listed the four men in custody as A. D. Henry, Sid Herrington, Alton Fleming and Wilbur Timmerman. They surrendered, the sheriff said, when they heard warrants had been sworn for them.

The sheriff said he received a report the negro, before death, said he had altercation over a small debt.

Studio Turns Atlanta Boys Into Austrians

2 Atlanta Boys Back From Europe, Reveal Arrest by Nazis as Spies

Rawson Haverty and William Akers Held Hours at Dresden, Germany; Youths Among Party of Americans Touring in Station Wagon.

By A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Two Atlanta boys, Rawson Haverty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty, and grandson of J. J. Haverty, and William Akers, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Akers, landed here today from a summer tour of Europe, where they were arrested in Dresden, Germany, of charges of being spies.

Commenting on his arrest and subsequent visit to a Nazi prison, young Haverty said today: "We were going along the road from Berlin to Dresden and we took some snapshots of a tank that passed us on the road. The tank, a German one, radioed ahead to look out for some Belgium spies in two-station wagons."

"We were traveling in two station wagons and had Belgium licenses on them and as we were about the only station wagons in Europe we were surrounded when we arrived at Dresden. We were locked up for the afternoon because they thought we were spies."

"A. J. Barry, who was in charge of our party, and the rest of us finally convinced the officials at the jail that we were not spies, but just Americans who didn't know any better than to take pictures in Germany."

"The officials then got in touch with the American consul and after being held for several hours we were released. They took some of our films, however."

Toured Continent.

The two Atlanta youths have been in Europe since June touring the continent with a group of companions in station wagons. In the party, in addition to Haverty, Akers and Barry, were Ted Gatteller, of York, Pa.; E. J. O'Brien Jr., of Louisville, Ky.; Henry Wilton, of York, Pa.; Richard and Charles Shriner, and Robert Scoville, of New York.

Further discussing his arrest in the Nazi prison, Haverty continued: "It wasn't so bad being in prison. The soldiers and officers were very polite and nice and even telephoned on to the Czechoslovakian border, to explain that we were genuine Americans. For that reason we were allowed over the Czechoslovakian border without having to stop for custom examinations."

Rigid Examination.

"When we crossed the German border from Holland we were put through a very rigid examination. They didn't stop with examining our passports, but the car numbers were recorded, all of our baggage checked, notations taken of the American Express checks we had, and also all of our money was checked.

"A complete record of all of us was made and the whole process took about a couple of hours."

Mr. and Mrs. Haverty and Mr. and Mrs. Akers, and Miss Ida Akers, from Atlanta, were among those who met the boys today when the party landed. They plan to return to their homes the latter part of the week, with the travelers.

The party sailed from here on June 26 under the direction of A. J. Barry, of Middleborough, N. Y., and docked at Antwerp July 4. They traveled in two station wagons, especially equipped for them, and a coupe and the motor jaunt went through six countries.

Impressed With Slavs.

Mr. Haverty was very much impressed with Prague and the Slavs are especially courteous, polite and nice. He says: "I learned a few words of German, but in Germany and especially in Czechoslovakia the natives there nearly all speak English, and most of the times they speak six or seven languages. Traveling in a car was fine for we got close to the people, a lot more so than if we had been on the train. They are all very friendly and like to talk about the government and especially like to talk about the Great War, which, of course, was very real to them."

"When we were at Vienna we went through the catacombs of St. Stephens church, where there are 30,000 buried who died of the plague. The guide told us we could take home some of the bones, but they were lying around all over the floor and I didn't feel very much like picking them up. "A funny thing, though, was that we saw many mountaineers going around in their Alpine costumes but I didn't hear any of them yodeling."

Retired Railway Conductor Dies at Home Here; Burial To Be in West View.

Joseph H. Bullard, 80-year-old retired conductor of the Southern railroad and pioneer resident of this section, died yesterday at his residence, 639 Delmar avenue, southeast.

Born in Griffin, he had lived in Atlanta for more than 45 years, being employed by the Southern railroad for many years until his retirement 18 years ago.

Before ill health forced his permanent retirement five years ago, he had been inspector for a local lumber company.

He was a member of the South Side Baptist church.

Funeral rites will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Brandon-Bond-Condon, with the Rev. J. C. Boyd officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Surviving are a son, W. P. Bullard; two daughters, Mrs. W. N. Brantley, of Atlanta, and Mrs. H. H. Stroud, of Austell; 16 grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

ADVENTURE IN LOVE

By KATHRN BEEMIS WILSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

As Read Wilkins rises at a dinner at his Chicago Gold Coast home to announce the engagement of his 18-year-old daughter, Velma, to the handsome, rich, and powerful Mr. Orville, the friends and the guests are surprised to learn that the bridegroom is a man of 71. Velma's father made 30 years earlier in mining speculation have vanished through misplaced confidence in Merry Dewey. Velma goes to visit her mother's schoolmate, Marie Clark, at Carryville, a small western city. Her money gone, she goes by bus. She likes red-headed Tom Orville, her estimate, who is going to Carryville as manager of a tour. After an overnight stop he is not on the bus, but later in the day she sees him dining in a hotel with a man and a pretty girl. He explains later they were his new boss and his daughter. Velma is very happy when he asks her to marry him. She goes with Mrs. Clark and her daughter, Maude and Louise. To their lake ingus camp, Marie dies suddenly. Velma finds a telegram from Tom to her, which Louise had opened, saying he and Velma are invited for a yacht cruise. Louise wires from New York she's going with Tom. Maude discharges Velma as social secretary. Clarence Folger, a camp neighbor, sends her to Mae Forland, whose Carryville dress shop his mother is, as a model. He secretly pays her salary of $75 a week. Velma likes him. She is the first woman to see of Louise's engagement to Tom. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

Leisurely, in a cheap restaurant, she ate a fruit salad and peanut butter sandwiches, and drank a cup of coffee. It made her feel a little more optimistic. However, she knew that way down deep inside she was still miserable. But the feeling wasn't rise to the surface again. She'd go to a movie and watch other people make love.

She laughed at herself grimly. Her love technique must be entirely wrong. The movie might teach her something vitally important about love.

She was picking up her change from the cashier's window in front of a movie theater when a familiar voice beside her said, "Velma!"

A hot gladness surged through her as she whirled about to meet Tom Orville's searching gaze. Then, abruptly, she had an uncontrollable desire to hurt him.

She said coolly, "Oh, hello, Tom. I thought you were—cruising."

She started toward the theater entrance, but he clutched her arm, and walked with her. "I must talk to you, Velma. Let's get in my car and take a ride."

She paused, speechless with indecision. He begged hurriedly, "Will you please, Velma?"

She drew away from him. "Well, really," she said, Louise might have something to say about that."

The brilliant electric lights showed in merciless detail the lines drawn in his pale haggard face. She felt nearly sorry for him. But he was no longer any concern of hers! Let him have his talks with Louise!

"What you and I have to say to each other doesn't concern any one else," he chopped out fiercely. The incoming crowd now jostled them on all sides. Tom pulled Velma inside the lobby, over by the wall.

She blazed up at him, "I really didn't know that I had anything to say to you, Mr. Orville!"

"But, Velma," he pleaded, "your attitude isn't—reasonable." "I suppose yours is," she flared. Jane Henry, coming along just then, glimpsed Velma. "Oh, my dear—how are you feeling? Miss Forland and I tried to call you but—"

"I'll go in with you, Jane," said Velma, wheeling from the crest-fallen Tom.

The instant she was in a seat, however, she regretted not having granted Tom's request. What had he wanted to talk about? What a jealous little goose she had been not to allow him to say what he wished to say. Perhaps, though, it was just as well. He would probably embarrass her further by being sorry he'd treated her so shabbily. She would have listened to a lot of idle chatter about how he'd always respect her; too bad he couldn't love a fine girl like herself. He wouldn't care if he hurt her pride or anything like that.

She swallowed the sob in her throat and tried to fix her mind on the screen story. It was a war picture, full of blood and thunder. The only love interest in it was woven round in and out of scenes at impossible times to fling her arms wildly about soldiers' necks. It wasn't the love-making a girl like herself would ever encounter or try to imitate. She had been foolish to come here and pretend she could snap away from her longing for Tom Orville. She couldn't, she couldn't!

"I have to go," she said suddenly to Jane. "See you at the shop in the morning."

She was out of her seat and up the aisle before the astonished Jane could stop her. "How strangely that girl acts! She must be in a terribly nervous state," Velma's fellow worker thought.

Velma staggered through the linky blackness of the theater's auditorium into the glaringly lighted inner lobby, suddenly crazed by the impulse to find Tom. She must see him tonight! She must let him explain—it might be something important he wanted to tell her. She must throw away that silly pride of hers and let Tom talk.

She sailed into the outer lobby. She paused, petrified with amazement. There, his mouth over the drinking fountain, was Tom, quenching his thirst. Was he waiting for her?

She gave one quick wild glance around and before he lifted his head, she had run like a hunted thing through a side exit to the street.

Oh, she couldn't see Tom now! She couldn't let him see her in this agitated state of mind!

She rushed blindly back to the Young Women's Christian Association, her heart hammering her throat.

Velma scolded herself many times after this for being a vacillating creature, who deserved all the bad breaks love handed her. The following day in the gown shop began with hectic preparations for the afternoon's fashion show, and she had very little opportunity to ponder over what love was, or the wherefores of its by-paths.

In the first number of the show, she couldn't let him see her in this agitated state of mind!

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

PIRATES OF DAYS GONE BY.

Two centuries ago, a pirate named Thatch made himself a terror along the Atlantic coast of British colonies in Virginia and the Carolinas. He was known as "Blackbeard" because of his heavy black beard which he wore.

Meanwhile, at Charles Town, there was a great deal of excitement. No war vessels were in the harbor to send against the pirates, so the governor and other men set about gathering the drugs. Away went the rowboat, and it reached the vessel on which Blackbeard had his cabin in time to keep him from harming the prisoners. They were sent to the shore, and the pirates sailed away with gold, jewels and other booty, as well as with the medicines.

The end of Blackbeard came in a fight during a later year. Two sloops, armed with cannon, hunted the pirates and found them anchored in a small bay. The pirates lost no time in firing a broadside at the sloops, and the sloops replied in like manner.

A boarding party of 20 pirates, including Blackbeard, got into the rowboat, then swarmed aboard one of the sloops. A hand-to-hand combat followed. Blackbeard was wounded, but escaped a fatal thrust until Captain Maynard engaged him in duel. The pirate was trying to draw his last loaded pistol when the captain's sword struck him to the deck. Those of his men still alive went overboard and swam for shore. Blackbeard lay dead, having suffered 25 wounds.

Among the prisoners were several well known citizens of the colony. Keeping them as hostages, Blackbeard sent a message to the colonial governor telling him he wanted certain medicines—about $300 worth of "pills, potions and plasters." Several pirates took the message in a rowboat, and were told to inform the governor that if the medicines

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 45

Wooza gazed with satisfaction at the net-imprisoned Tarzan. "You slew my pet, the panther—the one creature I really loved. You came here to destroy me, or steal the great emerald—perhaps both. For these things you shall die not one death, but many!"

The hideous old magician chuckled. "You are no ordinary prisoner, and I shall do you the honor of finding some novel and lingering method of killing you." He turned then into the adjoining room where he busied himself with lighting the charcoal in a brazier.

Then he fetched a long metal rod with a sharp-pointed end and wooden handle. He inserted the point among the hot coals; then he turned his attention once more to the ape-man, who sat watching him with a kind even to an enemy. I shall have pity."

A mocking grin overspread his evil face. "It would be most depressing and agonizing for you to watch the unpleasant preparations. I must make for your torture and death. Therefore, I shall spare you that unnecessary suffering—burning out your eyes!"
